TORNADO HITS HAMLET IN NEW YORK STATE

The Chautauque County community of Sinclairville worked hard Sunday trying to put some order into the shambles left in the path of a tornado that touched down there Saturday evening. Richard Clark searched through the rubble of a trailer that was once a home for his family. Clark saw the storm coming and hurried his family into the car and drove away from the twister. Judicial Candidates, Issues Dominate Statewide Balloting

HARRISBURG (AP) — Judicial candidates and issues will dominate statewide balloting in Pennsylvania's primary Tuesday, but most interest will center on local races.

More than 5.4 million citizens of the Commonwealth are registered to vote. Nevertheless, the turnout, as in past odd-numbered year primaries, is expected to be light.

For the first time since 1962, the electorate will nominate candidates for a State Supreme Court judgeship. The position was held formerly by the late Justice Michael A. Musmanno.

In addition, voters across the state will decide whether to alter the present method of selecting judges for courts of statewide jurisdiction.

Locally, nominees will be chosen for a drastically reduced number of justice of the peace offices in every county except Philadelphia.

Cambria County voters will cast ballots in a referendum calling for abolition of the magisterial system and creation of a community court.

In a legislative district comprising suburban Johnstown, a special election will fill a vacancy in the 203-member Pennsylvania House.

Pittsburgh, Scranton and 24 Third Class cities will pick nominees for the office of mayor.

Republican Thomas W. Pomeroy and Democrat Louis J. Manderino are unopposed with in their parties for the Supreme Court nomination, although both candidates cross-filed.

Pomeroy, a former Pittsburgh attorney, is serving on the court under an interim appointment by Gov. Shafer. Manderino is dean of the Duquesne University Law School.

The statewide ballot question is particularly significant in that it would make an important change in the constitution in reference to the selection of state judges.

Under present law, judges on the state bench run for office as nominees of their respective political parties and vacancies are filled by gubernatorial appointment with Senate confirmation.

The new system would provide for gubernatorial appointment from a list of 10 to 20 names submitted by a Judicial Qualifications Commission with no senatorial confirmation required.

After two years, an appointed judge seeking a full-term term would run unopposed with the voters having the choice of either retaining his services or turning him out of office.

The minor judicial also holds the spotlight in Tuesday's balloting with the nomination of candidates for the office of justice of the peace.

A recent consolidation reduced the number of magisterial districts in the state by approximately 80 per cent to a

Local Interest Focused On Contest for Judge

A host of political ambitions will be riding on the outcome of Tuesday's primary election but voter interest is overwhelmingly focused on one contest—judge of the 37th Judicial District.

Bonavita, eleven years county district attorney appointed to the bench for Warren and Forest counties by Gov. Raymond Shafer in January upon the retirement of Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr., is being challenged by attorneys Richard Leuthold and Robert L. Wolfe.

The names of all three will appear on both Democratic and Republican ballots. All other candidates for county-wide offices appear on the ballot as mere formalities. All Republicans and unopposed for office are Robert L. Ritchie, candidate for prothonotary and clerk of courts, William F. Morgan, candidate for district attorney and Dr. Ronald W. Simonsen, candidate for coroner.

In Warren borough councilman seats are to be filled in all nine wards. Republican incumbents James Torrance in the First Ward and R. W. Meacham in the Seventh Ward are not seeking reelection. Dr. Walter Jones is unopposed on the GOP ballot for Torrance's seat. Three Republicans, Elbert H. Miller, Alan H. Buerkle, and Richard F. Marchione, are seeking the seat being vacated by Meacham. There are also Republican contests in the Fifth and Eighth Wards. There is a contest among Democrats in the Fourth Ward.

GOP contests are also to be settled in Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Magisterial Districts.

Voters also will be choosing their parties' standard bearers for councilmen in other boroughs in the county, township supervisors, county school board directors, mayors, and constables.

Launch Flawless; Astronauts Transmit Brilliant TV Pictures

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 10 astronauts, launched flawlessly toward the moon Sunday, transmitted brilliant color television pictures of their home planet shrinking behind them as they sped outward in a dress rehearsal of a lunar landing mission.

Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdrs. John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan, jubilant at the successful first day of their moon voyage, shared their view of earth in two unplanned television space shows.

Pointing the camera out a window as their spaceship sped toward the moon at more than 20,000 miles an hour, the astronauts beamed to earth its first color portrait from 23,000 miles and then from more than 35,000 miles out in space.

"Just for the record," Cernan said of his view of earth, "it looks to me like a pretty nice place to live."

In both of the unscheduled transmissions, the earth stood out as a blue, brown and white-streaked ball floating on a cold, black background. "How's the color coming through down there," Stafford asked at one point. "Oh, beautiful," said mission control. "The oceans are a beautiful blue green. We can see the land masses in a brown to reddish brown." Stafford, holding the camera, then switched to views inside the spacecraft.

He showed Young and Cernan

Arab Textbooks Advocate Waging War with Israel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Some Arab textbooks advocate war on Israel and show contempt for Jews and should be banned from U.N.-operated schools for the children of Palestine refugees, a U.N. agency suggested Sunday.

Fourteen of the 127 books used in the schools fell into that category in a survey conducted by the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization—UNESCO.

The books are used in schools operated jointly by UNESCO and the U.N. Relief and Works Agency—UNRWA.

They are printed in Lebanon, Jordan and Egypt and are used by Arab refugees' children in Lebanon, Jordan and two Israeli-occupied areas — Jordan's West Bank and the Gaza Strip in Egypt.

American, French and Turkish experts named by UNESCO read the 127 books and recommended that 48 of them be kept, 14 withdrawn and 65 modified for future use.

They measured the books against provisions in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights that say education should promote respect for human rights, human development, and "understanding, tolerance and friendship."

New Attack Being Launched On Congressional Seniority

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp new attack on entrenched senior House Democrats has brought into the open growing discontent among some members with the workings of the seniority system.

Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., long a critic of what he calls "old fogyism," delivered the attack, but it is only the latest of a series of blows aimed at the rigid system that makes length of service in Congress the key to power.

Newer members, too, are beginning to raise their voices in protest and a liberal Democratic organization is laying the groundwork for a challenge to the system when the next Congress is organized.

Bolling, in a speech prepared for delivery at the National Priorities Convocation in Kansas City, Mo., said the chief product of the seniority system is "men of narrow vision."

He singled out three Southern Democratic chairmen of appropriations subcommittees as examples—Reps. Jamie L. Whitten, Mississippi, Otto E. Passman, Louisiana, and Robert L. F. Sikes, Florida.

Whitten's control of agricultural appropriations, he said, has resulted in farm policies that have had a disastrous effect on the poor.

Sikes, he said, as chairman of the military construction subcommittee has shown more loyalty to the "military mentality than to the civilian institution in which he serves."

And Passman, he said, is in charge of spending for foreign operations although he has strongly opposed most U.S. overseas programs.

Bolling, who with 20 years in the House is piling up seniority himself, often has voiced his disapproval of the system. Now some newer members, who have traditionally done their grumbling in private to avoid antagonizing their powerful elders, are beginning to sound off, too.

State Secretary of Commerce To Attend KDVB Dinner

Robert M. Mumma, who was named Pennsylvania's Secretary of Commerce on March 28, will make his first visit to Warren and Forest counties this Thursday to attend the annual dinner of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau at the Three Flags Inn.

With him will be Robert R. Shoemaker, director of the State's Travel Development Bureau who will be the principal speaker at the banquet. It is expected that both men will be accompanied by their wives.

The officials plan to fly to the area in private aircraft. On arrival they will be met by Robert C. Dilks, the vacation bureau's development director who will been received from tourist promotion leaders in Bradford, Kane, Smethport, Port Allegany, and Erie.

Mr. Mumma, who succeeds Clifford L. Jones as Commerce Secretary, is a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College and for many years was associated with Pennsy Supply, a Harrisburg building material firm founded by his father, the late Congressman Walter M. Mumma.

Mr. Mumma resigned as president of Pennsy Supply upon his appointment as Secretary of Commerce.

Mumma enlisted in World War II in 1941 and was separated five years later, as a Lieutenant-Colonel.

He is a member of a number of boards of directors for civic, charitable, and business organizations in the Harrisburg area and resides in Pennsylvania.

CONSIDERED FOR CAMPUS

The State Government Committee of the Pennsylvania State Senate is considering legislation to make this building available as a facility for the Warren Campus of Edinboro State College. The building is the Farm Colony section of Warren State Hospital now no longer used by the hospital. The Warren Campus has for some time sought the colony to replace the old East Street School which has served as classroom building for the campus since it began in 1962. Sen. Richard Frame and Assemblyman William Allen both have introduced legislation which would transfer the buildings and 196 acres from the public welfare department to the Department of Public Instruction. Apollo at their cramped spaceship workstations. Cernan held up a flight plan and the picture was clear enough to easily read words on the document.

Someone else took the camera and focused on Stafford.

The Apollo 10 commander was casually chewing gum.

All three were still wearing the heavy white space suits they donned hours before in Florida just before their launch.

Earlier, in the scheduled portion of the more than 60 minutes of television from space Sunday, the Apollo 10 crew let the world watch while they docked with the lunar lander.

As the television camera beamed its first signal to earth, Young deftly separated the command module, turned it around and poked the nose of the cone-shaped spaceship into the docking collar of the lunar lander.

The module was still nested atop the third stage booster rocket, called the S4B.

A few minutes after docking, the command module and the lunar module, linked together, were spring ejected from the S4B.

The astronauts maneuvered their spaceship into a safe position, then focused their camera on the S4B. At a signal from the ground, the discarded rocket's engines came to life. The S4B streaked out of sight into solar orbit.

Apollo 10 was launched into orbit precisely on time, 12:49 a.m. EDT, from the space complex at Cape Kennedy.

The Saturn 5 rocket booster, largest in the world, ignited at the precise moment planned months before and bathed the launching pad in flame.

The 365-foot spacecraft stack, with the command module just a small pimple on top stood motionless for nine seconds while the rocket engines burned up to full power.

Slowly the spacecraft lifted its 3,000-ton weight, straining into the cloudy sky, then turned southeast and disappeared into space.

"What a ride!" said Cernan excitedly. "What a ride!"

Then later, Cernan almost shouted: "It's beautiful out there. Fantastic, man, really fantastic. Man, this is the great."

Apollo 10 circled the earth for almost two orbits before the crew ignited the powerful S4B rocket engine and roared farther into space, toward the moon a quarter million miles away.

A few minutes after the rocketing, the space crew separated from the S4B and started their docking maneuvers.

Apollo 10 will match all phases of a lunar landing mission except the actual moon touchdown.

As the spacecraft passes behind the moon for the first time and out of contact with the earth, the crew fires the powerful service propulsion system rocket engine to slow slightly and drop into the gravitational grasp of the moon. Stafford and his crewmates will ride in a 69 by 195 mile orbit of the moon five hours.

They then will fire the service propulsion engines again, changing their elliptical orbit into a near-perfect circle 69 miles above the surface of the moon.

At about 11:40 a.m. EDT Thursday, Stafford and Cernan will transfer from the command module into the still-attached lunar module.

Young will separate the command module, leaving Stafford and Cernan alone in moon orbit aboard the fragile lunar module.

Stafford will fire the lunar module descent engine to slow the moon machine. The rocket burn will drop the lunar module into an orbit that dips to within nine miles of the moon's surface.

Stafford and Young will be working furiously to gather the data Apollo 11 must have to successfully land on the moon in July.

The lunar module will sweep over the landing site, called Apollo site two, where Americans may walk in July. Pictures of this area are vital to a later safe landing.

Stafford will then fire the descent rocket for a second time, raising the moon orbit high point to more than 200 miles. This will allow the command module, still in orbit at 69 miles, to catch up and pass the orbit path of the lunar module.

The lunar module, after looping far out behind the moon, and out of touch with earth, will come back into radio contact and once again pass within nine miles of the moon's surface.

Stafford and Young will drop the descent stage of the lunar module. They will fire the ascent stage engine to lower their orbit and flash again behind the moon. There, they will fire the rocket engine again to line them up for rejoining Young in the command module.

Two more rocket burns will bring the two spacecraft to a rendezvous and Young will guide the command module to a final linking.

Stafford and Cernan will crawl back into the command module and the lunar module will separate, ignite its engine on signal and rocket out of sight into a solar orbit.

The Apollo 10 crewmen will spend another day in orbit about the moon.

THREE NEW DIRECTORS NAMED

Election of three new directors was one of the business items before the thirtieth annual meeting of the Warren Electric Co-operative, Youngsville, attended by more than 360 members on Thursday. Pictured are, left to right, Marshall Danielson, RD 2, Pittsfield, James G. Marshall, RD 1, Tidioute, and James Bailey, Jr., RD 1, Pleasantville, the successful nominees. Bailey is a newcomer to the nine-member board. Danielson and Marshall, running for re-election, were first elected in 1966 and 1960 respectively. The Co-op president, Myron Ludwick, RD 3, Sugar Grove, conducted the meeting. William F. Matson, manager of the 13-member Pennsylvania Rural Electric Association, spoke on the need for rural Americans to "tell their story" because they have lost their representation in the legislatures since the problems of the cities became the focus of attention.

2 Teen-agers Killed, 3 Hurt in Mishap

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—Two teen-age girls were killed and three other youths were injured in a traffic accident at an intersection.

State police said Michelle Boyle, 16, of West Chester died before she could be rushed to a hospital Saturday night. Barbara Cialini, also 16 and from West Chester, died Sunday in Wilmington Medical Center.

Two passengers in the car with the girls were hospitalized. They were Ruth Erdman and Patricia Conner.

The driver of the other car, Jeffrey Davis, was treated at a hospital and released.

Car Hits Pole;

Lights Go Out

Homes in the Clarendon area lost electrical service Sunday afternoon when a car crashed into a utility pole. State police said John M. Erick, 16, 311 Church st., Sheffield, was turning into a driveway when he was struck from behind by a car driven by Chester R. Mason, 3320 Melrose ave., Erie.

Erick's car was driven into the pole by the force of the impact. Damage to the cars was set at $800.

Kids Narrowly Miss Drowning

BROWNSVILLE, Pa. (AP)—A car with four screaming children in it rolled out of control for about an eighth of a mile downhill until it finally stopped on the edge of a bridge, 600 feet over the Monongahela River.

Charles Shafer said one of his children, whose ages range from 6 to 18, knocked the car out of park while he, his wife and another child were shopping at a market Saturday night.

A police car and a man getting gas at a service station across the street tried unsuccessfully to stop the runaway car. It finally lodged itself at a curve on the side of the bridge which carries traffic into Brownsville.

Minor Crashes

Borough police investigated two minor crashes Saturday night. Michael V. Reese, 18, 260 W. State st., Pleasantville, struck a parked car in the care of Daniel John Swanson, 208 Lexington ave., police said.

Cars operated by Mary Lou Gnage, 36, 100 Park st., and Delwin Bailey, 23, 720 Fifth ave., collided on Park st. near North st. Investigations are being completed on both mishaps.

North Vietnamese Storm U.S. Artillery Base

SAIGON (AP) — About 1,000 North Vietnamese stormed a U.S. artillery base 40 miles northeast of Saigon Sunday while others beat back an American attempt farther north to seize an enemy headquarters atop a mountain near Laos.

The two battles cost the Americans at least 24 killed and 79-89 wounded.

U.S. paratroops lost 10 killed and 40-50 wounded as the merican effort to scale the 3,000-foot slope of enemy-held Dong Ap Bia mountain overlooking the A Shau Valley went into its eighth day.

A company of the 101st U.S. Airborne Division was mauled as North Vietnamese forces hurled back the 10th attempt to storm the mountain.

Enemy losses were not known, but U.S. officers estimated that many North Vietnamese have been killed by more than a week of massive air and artillery strikes which have stripped most of the jungle growth from the peak.

The mass enemy attack northwest of Saigon was aimed at the U.S. artillery base and more than half a dozen South Vietnamese military positions, including headquarters of the 18th Division.

The enemy moved up behind a curtain of mortar and rocket fire and charged the U.S. base, hurling dynamite bombs at the gun batteries.

U.S. losses were reported as 14 killed and 39 wounded. Initial reports said four South Vietnamese were killed and 14 wounded. Enemy dead were put at 78 killed.

The attack was launched in Long Khanh Province on the eve of North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh's birthday. U.S. and allied commanders throughout the country have been alerted to expect attacks Monday to coincide with Ho's birthday.

U.S. headquarters also reported 37 rocket and mortar attacks on allied military positions and

St. Marys Motorist Is Shot in Back

ST. MARYS, Pa. (AP) — Police said a 22-year-old St. Marys man stopped a passing motorist on a residential street and shot him in the back Sunday.

Police said the shooting occurred in front of the home of the suspect, Gary Cheate. Cheate is now under guard in Ridgway Hospital, police said.

The victim, Michael Cook, 25, was in serious condition at the hospital.

Police said they have found no motive for the shooting.

towns overnight Sunday, but only 16 of them caused casualties or damage.

South Vietnamese headquarters said two provincial capitals were among the targets, but Saigon was spared. Headquarters said the enemy shelling killed one civilian and wounded four civilians and six soldiers.

Sixty B52 bombers dropped 1,800 tons of bombs on North Vietnamese troop concentrations, bases, bunker complexes, gun positions and supply depots at points northwest and northeast of Saigon and in the central highlands in Kontum Province during the 24-hour reporting period ending at noon Sunday.

The U.S. Command lifted the security wraps from a new operation involving more than 1,000 U.S. Marines aimed at smashing North Vietnamese installations near the demilitarized zone.

The new operation, called Virginia Ridge, is centered about five miles south of the DMZ, and four miles west of the district town of Cam Lo. It was launched by battalions from the 3rd and 9th Marine Regiments May 1.

Since then the Marines have killed 32 North Vietnamese soldiers while suffering 21 Marines killed and 169 wounded.

The U.S. Command said a U.S. Marine jet fighter-bomber collided with an aerial tanker in the air 400 miles north of Saigon, causing the crash of both aircraft plus a second war plane hit by fragments from the collision.

An air-sea search was ordered for eight men believed to have been aboard the two aircraft that collided. Two crewmen from the second F4 Phantom fighter-bomber ejected and were rescued from the South China Sea.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers continued his fact-finding trip under tight security, flying to within 10 miles of the demilitarized zone Sunday.

An aide said there were no hostile incidents during the second day of Rogers' trip into the field, but that the secretary did see some of the war with artillery bursts on the horizon.

Rogers also visited the hospital ship Repose where he visited his son, Ens. Jeffrey Rogers, a crew member, and pinned purple heart medals on 14 wounded Marines and soldiers.

total of just over 600.

If Cambria countians vote yes on the community court question, the office of JP would be a thing of the past in that area.

The state's newly revised constitution authorizes the establishment of such courts in counties where the voters give their approval in a referendum.

Community courts would be manned by members of the bar, whereas JPs are not required to be lawyers. Cambria would be entitled to three community judges, as opposed to 12 JPs.

Republican T.T. Metzger and Democrat John P. Murtha are the candidates in the special election for the 72nd Pennsylvania House district.

The vacant seat was held by Rep. Edward W. McNally, a Democrat, who died last November after winning election to his fifth term.

Democrats have a primary fight on their hands in Pittsburgh's mayoral election, which finds independent Peter F. Flaherty challenging the organization endorsed candidate, Harry Kramer, a former judge.

Running with only token opposition on the Republican side is John K. Tabor, who resigned as state secretary of labor and industry earlier this year to seek the office.

Tabor's only previous try for elective office was in 1966 when he defeated incumbent Genevieve Blatt for the spot in internal affairs secretary. The office, however, later was abolished.

Pittsburgh's mayor for the past 10 years has been Democrat Joseph M. Barr, who is stepping down because of ill health. Barr is one of his party's top leaders in the state.

Archaeologists Call Conclave Here Best State Meeting Yet

By FRANKLIN R. HOFF

The 40th Annual meeting of the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology, meeting in Warren Friday and Saturday, May 16 and 17, 1969, with the Kinzua Chapter 18, of the society as hosts, was pronounced by delegates and speakers alike as the best state meeting yet held. Speakers remarked it was probably one of the best state archaeological society meetings in the nation.

Kinzua Chapter 18 Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology president, John M. Zavinski reported more than 170 registered as delegates, with 162 attending the dinner meeting. Among the delegates were representatives from 12 colleges and universities, 11 chapters of the society were represented. Zavinski received the highest recognition from the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology, when the coveted "Archie" award was conferred upon him, for his many years devoted to archaeology of northwestern Pennsylvania, and to the society.

Others who received "archie" awards included Mrs. Elinor Fair and Howard Wyant. A special citation was voted for Mrs. Frances Dornace, of the Wilkes Barre area, now 93 years old, one of the founders of the Society for Pennsylvania Archaeology, an active supporter, and for whom Chapter 11 is named.

The dinner address of Dr. William A. Ritchie, State Archaeologist of New York, illustrated with a series of slides, covered a wide range of current archaeological activity and discovery. In addition to his supervision of projects in New York State, he assists in major new undertakings in other areas, for which he is supported by outside universities and foundations. Of tremendous interest were new discoveries along the Hudson River, on Staten Island, in southern New England, and on Martha's Vineyard. The most astonishing discoveries in which he participated was the project in the remote areas of Newfoundland, where a completely new culture never suspected was dramatically revealed. Amazingly rich caches of artifacts, including tools, projectile points and other objects in a burial ground with many graves revealed much about these heretofore unknown people.

Recent archaeological discoveries show by carbon dating and other means that the northeastern section of the U.S. has been inhabited by mankind since at least 8000 years before Christ—a span of 10,000 years. To the layman and the rank amateur archaeologist the story proved most exciting.

A discussion by Dr. John L. Cotter, Chief of Archaeological Research, Philadelphia Service Center, National Park Service, for Northeast Region of Pennsylvania, proved not only immensely informative but a witty presentation of the greatly accelerated interest in archaeology and prehistory. Cotter emphasized the very real contribution that many college students, high school and even grade school young people are making today in this field. The problem of saving sites for exploration ahead of the bulldozer, and of getting necessary digging accomplished is that of lack of sufficient trained manpower. Cotter, recently returned from a family excursion to Mexico, and some of its thrilling archaeological sites, emphasizes that in the U.S. it is a grave mistake to consider our heritage began at a cut-off date of 1,000 A.D. or 1492 A.D. Instead, our heritage ought to be a matter of great pride through the entire range of pre-history revealed by archaeology. Mexican children and in fact its people, have unbounded pride in their early history and thousands of school children visit the great Mayan, Toltec and other remains of its great past. Cotter gave much importance to what he terms "mini-sites" for archaeological study, where young people can undertake digs on historical sites which are small in area. Many of these

Frame Bill Would Protect Students

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau) HARRISBURG — No employee of a school or any educational center would be allowed to divulge any confidential information they might receive from a student of the institution they serve, under legislation sponsored by Senator Richard C. Frame of Franklin, whose senatorial district embraces Warren County.

The legislation would apply to teachers, guidance counselors, school administrators or other employees in public, private or parochial schools and other educational facilities.

Prohibition to such disclosure would be extended to any proceedings, "civil or criminal in any court of this state."

SPEAKERS AT STATE ARCHAEOLOGY MEETING

BOOK AUTOGRAPHING PARTY

Dr. William A. Ritchie, state archaeologist of New York, Albany, N.Y., dinner speaker at the convention, takes time out to autograph copies of his newest book, "Archaeology of New York State," published a month ago, and already in its second printing. are concerned with sites of historic habitations and industries which existed in the 17th and 18th centuries, which throw much new light on the times and the people in the early days of settlement on this continent.

Leslie L. Delaney, Asst. Prof. of History at King's College, Wilkes Barre, illustrated with slides the important discoveries already made in Luzerne County, which appear to throw new light on some of the unsolved problems concerning the Susquehanna Indians, and the development of their culture. Exploration still continues in this field. The appearance of different types of pottery together in time and place, and the disclosure of caches of calm shells used in tempering pottery, plus somewhat spectacular finds of stone tools, of charred food remains, showing cultivation of bean crops, as well as animal remains, reveal much about life patterns.

Dr. Don W. Dragoo, curator, Section of Man, Carnegie Museum, Pittsburgh and Butler, disclosed much of the new knowledge which has so recently been found in the Allegheny valley, particularly in the Kinzua reservoir area and north of the border in New York State, which revises much previous conjecture about the people who inhabited this region in prehistoric times. The importance of his revelations was evident from comments of many archaeologists, who consider these discoveries, aided by the Kinzua Chapter 18 members, little short of epoch-making, concerning relationship of Iroquoian and Monongahela cultures in the upper Ohio Valley region.

Bettye J. Broyles of W. Va. Geological Survey, Morgantown, W. Va., showed slides covering a most ambitious archaeological dig which has been conducted during the past three summers, along the Kanawha River. The dig extends 37 feet below the surface, where both charcoal and other items show habitation in most remote times in that valley, as far back as 9,000 years B.C.

Tremendous interest was shown on a two-part slide presentation by John M. Zavinski and Stanley W. Lantz on the archaeology of the upper Allegheny Valley. These discoveries, particularly in the Kinzua Valley sites, have commanded national and international attention, and indicate radical revision of previous hypotheses of life and culture of early man in this region.

President Jacob L. Grimm handed his gavel over to new president, Melville W. Corl. LeRoy Schneck served as master of ceremonies for the banquet, in his traditionally capable and witty manner. Members are preparing to attend next year's annual meeting at Lancaster.

As a memento of the meeting, a unique souvenir was given to all delegates, an authentic replica of a prehistoric archaic pottery bowl, bearing small human effigies in its design, unearthed by local archaeologists Stanley Lantz and John Zavinski.

Conservation Class Tours County Farms

Members of the conservation class at Warren Area High School toured farms in Warren County on Wednesday with their teacher, Mrs. Marion Minnis, Lyle Cathcart, district conservationist Soil Conservation Service, and Norman Perschke, assistant county agent.

The purpose of the trip was to impress the students with the fact that agriculture still plays a big part in the economy of Warren County and that farmers continue their conservation practices to assure perpetuation of their economic assets. In this respect, the students were reminded that the top 6" layer of the earth's crust contains all of the nutrients and minerals necessary to sustain human and plant life, and that it is through conservation practices — terracing, drainage, etc., that the farmer protects this vital link with nature.

The class first visited the Ed Spittler farm at Russell, where they learned of the problems related to raising sheep for a living.

At Hans Block's farm near Lander, they saw an unusual operation where Hereford and Angus cattle are brought in from West Virginia, weighing about 400 to 500 lbs. and are fattened to prime beef at over 1,000 pounds.

They saw examples of conservation practices in diversion terraces and ditches at the Myron Ludwick farm near Lander.

After lunch at Sugar Grove, the group continued their trip to the Bob Scott dairy at Lottsville. Here they saw the ultimate in two-level milking parlors, with the milker working at udder level. The emphasis here and at the next farm was on the fact that many farmers today have $50,000 and more invested in their "manufacturing" plants; so farming is big business, not just a means of making a living.

At the Carlton Curtis dairy farm at Columbus, the class saw automated dairying from udder to the milk bottle. Whereas milk is shipped from the Scott farm to the processor, the entire operation is automated at the Curtis farm.

Sporadic Fires Break Out In Malaysia

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Sporadic fires broke out Sunday in this battered capital of half a million people torn by six days of bloody race rioting between Chinese and Malay elements.

Smoke billowed up in scattered parts of the city as fire brigades dashed from one blaze to another, trying to prevent a major conflagration.

Authorities placed the death toll at 132 in this polyglot capital and four elsewhere. But unofficial medical sources said at least 300 bodies have been reported by the city morgues and hospitals.

Bodies were seen floating in the muddy Klang River which winds through Kuala Lumpur. Reports of the latest incidents were sketchy, since newsmen, whose passes were lifted Saturday, were not allowed to move about the city.

Gunfire still crackled in the uneasy capital, but it was not clear whether roaming bands of Chinese and Malay youths were still shooting at each other, or whether police were firing into the air to disperse crowds.

The overall situation was described by authorities as "tense but under control." Some looting was reported.

The racial explosion followed an announcement of results in last week's general elections which showed that the ruling Alliance party had lost heavily although it retained a slight majority in Parliament.

The Alliance's Chinese faction, heaviest loser in the balloting, announced it would not serve in the new government. This set off Chinese fears that the nation would be run by an all-Malay government.

Select Judges on Merit

We urge you to vote "yes" on the only statewide ballot question in the Tuesday primary election. This is the proposal to change the method of selecting judges for the three statewide courts.

The working of the merit selection is simple and fair. When a vacancy occurs in one of the three highest courts -- state Supreme Court, the Superior Court, or the Commonwealth Court -- the Governor makes an appointment from a list of ten to twenty names compiled by a nominating panel.

This panel, called a Judicial Qualifications Commission, would be made up of four lay people appointed by the Governor and three lawyers appointed by the Supreme Court. No more than four of the seven panel members would be of one political party and none would be active in a political party or hold other public office.

JAMES RESTON

Court and the Universities

WASHINGTON — There is something in the air here which may help explain the tragedy and mystery of the Fortas case. It is not that the powerful men in the national capital are more corrupt than they used to be — they used to buy and sell states in the old days — but the opportunity and temptation to misuse power and position are greater now than ever before.

There is a lot more money around for one thing. The Government's power to grant defense contracts, to prosecute or not under the antitrust laws, to distribute money to the poor people at home and the poor nations abroad, to allocate television franchises, to regulate trade, banking and the securities markets — to mention only a few — is stupendous. And the men in position to influence these decisions are obviously under more pressure to give and receive favors than most men in other places.

For example, lawyers in Washington with easy access to the White House don't have to do anything wrong in order to benefit greatly from the largess of companies looking for aid from the Government. Sometimes they don't have to do anything at all, for many companies will pay them handsome retainers just to agree to consult with them in the event the company needs a little Washington "advice."

For every judge or official or Congressman here who peddles influence for personal gain there are a great many more who wear themselves out at great financial sacrifice, but the fact is that a great deal of the work of the capital proceeds in an atmosphere of vote-trading and favor-giving. This has always been true, of course, but it was especially prevalent in the wheeling-dealing days of President Johnson, whose three closest personal associates — Walter Jenkins, Bobby Baker and now Abe Fortas — all left the Government service under charges of misconduct.

The comments here about the Fortas case are particularly significant. Many of them express surprise that a man with so much money should have entered into a deal with a man with such a shady reputation — which leaves the implication that if Fortas had been relatively poor and Wolfson relatively pure, the deal might have been understandable if not quite justifiable.

It is harder to explain the effect of power on the character of men close to the White House, but it clearly twists their view of themselves in many cases. Somehow, advising Presidents on momentous questions of state makes them feel apart from other men. They live in a world of confidences, privileges and even conspiracies, where other men and forces have to be manipulated.

Harry Hopkins, sitting on the right hand of Roosevelt, and in moral judgment on everybody else who differed with him, got into the habit of thinking he did not have to be constrained by the ethical and economic rules that governed lesser men. Sherman Adams, who ran the White House under President Eisenhower, didn't think he was doing anything wrong in accepting favors from Bernard Goldfine; he seemed to think he was doing Goldfine a favor by accepting Goldfine's favors, especially since they were so petty.

The corruption of the robber baron days was more direct. Officials made straight deals for big kickbacks and usually admitted they were wrong when caught. Now the deals are comparatively small and oblique, and all proclaim innocence at the end.

There are some opponents of this merit selection process for state judges who are disturbed by the loss of the voter of his right to choose between two competitors for judicial office. But we should bear in mind that judges do not govern, judges do not represent, judges do not sit for a constituency in a legislative body to enact law or levy taxes. A judge's job is to administer justice, a highly specialized skill, and a "popularity" contest is not the best way to determine a man's competence.

This ballot question in no way affects the election of judges in county courts or common pleas courts, only judges on the state level.

The voter who votes "yes" for the merit selection of nonpolitical statewide judges will be casting a vote for an important judicial reform in Pennsylvania.

Flight Two Is Over

A few of you may recall that, a year and a half ago, I decided to make a 90-minute television picture called "A Critical Look at the World." A group of us boarded Pan-American Flight Two at New York and flew eastbound. When we arrived home, Royalty Productions had had thirteen hours of film which would have to be cut hard and mercilessly to add up to 90 minutes, including commercials.

It is now complete and I'm beginning to wonder if, perhaps, I was harsh to my fellow man. He must have some redeeming features, but I do not find them in him or in me. In a way, it reminds me of the time I wrote a book called "The Day Christ Died," and a group of priests in Chicago shook my hand and said: "You have done a great thing" and I said, "No, I wrote it for the money that is in it."

I look everywhere for charity and men will give it at eight percent interest. Even the most proper of bankers expect an extra two points under the table. The United States has no friends except those who are bought fresh each year. This does not engender bitterness on my part; it is what I expected to find.

At home, we appear to have many more traitors than we can afford. The college boys and girls, who should be busy furrowing and seeding their minds, vandalize their alma mater and burn schools. Parents have lost control; teachers are frightened; college presidents quit.

In Berlin, I found one Jewish family which lived through an assortment of Hitler ovens, and you will see them in a pretty garden — the mother pouring tea and explaining how the gentiles rebuilt the gutted temple and she gives her personal as-sur-prise that there is no more anti-Semitism in Berlin. Fade out and the next shot is a blond boy with ball bearing eyes who assures you that there is anti-Semitism and that he belongs to a new Nazi party.

It may be, as one producer said, a bit too strong to show to the people of our country. If so, the project is a washout and should go into the ash can. Maybe we are not ready to take a hard look at ourselves in a cracked mirror. Who needs it? Life is harsh enough without showing one potted geranium in a window in the slums of Istanbul.

At the University of Tokyo, the sons of the losers of the last war — speaking excellent English — stood before our cameras and told us to get out of Vietnam and "Go home, Go home and stay home." In 1947, the United States sent DDT to India and the quantity and quality of food was so improved that more Hindus lived, and now there are 514,000,000 of them. Each year, they give birth to the population of Australia.

Today we sent the Pill to India to stop what we started. Millions of Indian mothers are so illiterate that they cannot read the billboard signs which advise them to report to their local health clinics. It is, let us say, a much less intelligent world than we thought.

Two countries, the Soviet Union and the United States spend a hundred and a half seventy-five billions of dollars on missiles which they cannot use. Both sides know that if one goes, they all go. If they go, as General George C. Kenny once said, we may provide light for the people on Mars to read by. Assuming, of course, that there are people on Mars.

If we do not find a formula for stopping the rocket race, we may become so impoverished that we will have to eat them. I have no illusions that I have produced a great film in "A Critical Look at the World," but I assure you that it is anything but a tourist's trip.

Last week, Stanley Colbert, President of Royalty Productions, showed me the finished product. Jose Ferrer, a man with a voice of remarkable timbre, utters the commentary.

In Saigon, we saw our men win a village of rice paddies by day, and lose it to the Cong the same night. We needed a bright spot badly, and we found it in Hawaii, where Chinn Ho, chairman of Capitol Investment Corporation, staged a luau with hula dancers, a whole roast pig, and a fiery sun being swallowed by the sea.

It is the only place where religion and race mean nothing. The old animosities expired in mixed marriages. The grown-ups giggle like children. I have no plan to save the world. I am sure it is sick, but I am equally sure that I am not a doctor.

Flight Two came into Los Angeles and, as it touched down, I felt that it reminded me of man: The big silver bird had been all over the world; it had seen everything and remembered nothing . . .

Negro History in the Making

(Note to Editors: The Washington Merry-Go Round today takes the form of a letter by Drew Pearson to his grandson, Joseph P. Arnold.)

Washington
May 17, 1969

Dear Joe:

Two events happened in the past week which someday you and other boys of your age will look back on and say that they made history.

One was the election of Charles Evers, a Negro, to be the first mayor of a Mississippi town in 100 years. The second was the way a Negro mayor, Walter Washington in Washington, D. C., and Luke Moore, the Negro U. S. marshal handled a crowd of rowdy and rebellious Negro students at Howard University, a largely Negro institution.

Both events show that despite some discouraging racial setbacks on the university campuses, we are making progress.

Charles Evers is a man who is the exact opposite of the young black militants who are tearing our campuses apart today. Some years ago his brother Medgar was shot and killed from ambush while putting his car in the garage, all because Medgar had urged voting rights for Negroes.

Charles had every reason to be bitter about his brother's death. Most people would have resorted to revenge and violence. But Evers applied the doctrine of love.

Patiently he went about the job of convincing white men in Mississippi that the black man had a right to vote; and of convincing black men that they should vote. He had a very difficult time doing this, because Negroes were scared to death when they came into the voting places. And they had reason to be. For in one town alone — McComb, Miss. — in the summer of 1964 two churches were blown up and 20 Negro homes damaged. I went down there that summer to bail out 30 young students who were arrested when they protested these bombings.

But Evers kept his head. He kept plugging away for the black man's right to vote. Gradually he began to win. The Congress, the courts sided with him. He put on a tremendous educational campaign among his own people to get them to register.

I was with Evers in Chicago shortly after he had won the right to eat in a white restaurant. We were raising money to send 20,000 turkeys to poor people for Christmas in Mississippi and I took him to the Pump Room of the Hotel Ambassador East, one of the more fashionable eating places in Chicago. The menu was in French.

Evers studied it quizzically. "That's the penalty of integration," he finally said, "You have to eat the white man's food." Finally last week, he was elected mayor of the little town of Fayette, the first Negro mayor elected in Mississippi since the carpetbaggers and the Negro bosses went too far in reconstruction days.

RUSSELL BAKER

Spring Braincleaning

WASHINGTON — A mind, like an attic, ought to be straightened up in the spring. Ideas that don't fit any more need to be taken out and left for the Salvation Army, and thoughts that have been riddled by moths over the past year need to be put in the trash.

It is always a bit shocking, going up there and rooting around, how musty everything smells. There, hung on racks or thrown casually over big oblong memories with rusting hasps, are old notions that have gone out of style, convictions that lost their firmness years ago, principles that once looked chic but would now provoke gales of laughter if worn in public.

Here is a whole brain lobe stuffed with old clichés. Most of them are so out of date that they aren't even clichés any longer. Well, cleaning up a mess like this, a man has to start somewhere, and surely "Right as rain" has no place anymore in the neatly ordered mind. Out it goes. What was so right about rain anyhow? "Sound as a dollar," you were well, but you're through. Out you go, along with "Fit as a fiddle" and "Lean as a rail."

"Hey, you there, up in the logic lobe! How come you never asked what was right about a fiddle? What's so fit about a fiddle? Is a fiddle fitter than an oboe?"

No answers come back, of course. There haven't been any is very similar to the excesses of those post-Civil War days. And just as the highhandedness of some Negroes after the Civil War caused the loss of Negro gains and sympathy for almost 100 years, so the excesses at universities today is likely to do the same thing.

When a minority of either blacks or whites paralyze a great university, when they rampage through libraries that have taken years to collect, when they steal private papers from the files of college presidents, when they deny the right to learn to the majority of students who have paid for that right, then they hurt not only themselves but the goals of all minorities.

What the students of today don't realize is that it took years to put across federal aid to education, but it would only take a couple of days debate in Congress to end it.

I have heard Mrs. Agnes Meyer, who has crusaded for years for better public schools, tell how she went to see President Eisenhower in 1953, shortly after he was elected, to try to persuade him to push aid to education. He gave her a lecture against federal interference with schools and colleges.

Later, Sen. Joe Clark of Pennsylvania pushed an aid-to-education bill and it got a tie vote in the Senate. Vice President Nixon was then called upon to break the tie and he voted against education.

So, for more than ten years, Congress refused to vote funds for schools and colleges. And it was not until Lyndon Johnson, a Southerner, became President that he changed this. Since then we have made the greatest progress in history toward better education — until this year.

And this year the student revolts have seriously set education back.

Another thing which the black militants don't realize is that when the state or the federal government gives them a free or cut-rate education, the state has a right to give some guidance regarding their studies. What the state needs is not Negroes educated in a lot of snap courses such as black studies, but Negro doctors, lawyers and engineers.

Yet young Negro militants closed down the best Negro schools of medicine and dentistry at Howard University for no good reason at all. It hurt them and it set back progress toward the goals which they have been trying so long to achieve.

There was one healthy development, however. When the black militants refused to end their sit-in, two responsible Negroes, Mayor Washington and U. S. Marshal Moore, moved in to throw them out. And they did it far more efficiently than did the police at Columbia last year or the police at Harvard this year.

Which proves that qualified Negroes when given responsibility can and do exercise it. And the nation's greatest mistake was in not giving it to them sooner.

So I congratulate the people of Fayette, Miss., for electing a qualified Negro as mayor and I congratulate Charles Evers for announcing as his motto, "Let's replace hate with love."

All this is why I say that someday your generation will look back on last week's achievements as a milestone in history.

Love,
Your Grandfather

No Howling Affair

HARRISBURG — Tomorrow's primary election is expected to be anything but a howling affair although there are issues on the ballot well worth howling about.

Fundamentally so-called "off-year" elections, such as tomorrow's, are regarded as local affairs — which will indeed be the case tomorrow but with an added touch of spice perhaps in view of one constitutional question on the ballot, namely: shall judges on the state's appellate courts be selected via so-called "merit selection" or elected statewide as at present?

Even this latter point is not expected to swamp the polls by any means; in fact in many quarters there is some question as to whether there will even be anything approaching an appreciable increase in the number of ballot markers.

All of which is one reason why many oppose the idea of such important statewide matters appearing on the ballot in the primary instead of the general election in the fall when voter turnouts invariably are heavier.

It isn't necessarily a question of whether such issues as constitutional amendments would pass handler (or even pass at all for that matter) with a larger electorate appearance at the polls; rather it is simply regarded as more conducive to fuller representation of voter sentiment on critical issues.

Perhaps the one minor side effect of having such items as constitutional questions on the ballot during a primary is that it is one time when those registered as independents (such as this writer) and non-partisans have every right to march into the voting booth on primary day and smoke cigars with others waiting in line.

However there is more to tomorrow's primary than the constitutional issue.

In this "off-year" election there are a host of local offices at stake, which from the close-to-home standpoint perhaps have more bearing and significance than the statewide issues.

Depending on what's happening in any given locality there may be issues other than candidates.

For example, you may find a referendum on whether your borough is to spend $500,000 for a new building — something in which you as a taxpayer unquestionably would have an "interest."

On the office-seeking front there are a number of congenitally critical posts up for party filling, as for example mayoralty posts, county commissioners, county "row" offices such as sheriff, prothonotary, clerk of courts, treasurer, village councilman, local school board, etc.

The local contests of this year 1969 perhaps are quite appropriate under the circumstances — following last year's abortive, explosive, slam-bang presidential/legislative hoe-down that saw Republican Richard Nixon move into the White House and a split Legislature on Pennsylvania's Capitol Hill with anti-administration Democrats gaining control of the House of Representatives.

Thus the local fracas holds top billing in tomorrow's voting booth scuffle, although the judgeship selection proposal on the ballot is interesting in that if approved by the voters it will mean a radical departure from the present system of statewide election of judges to the top court chairs — Supreme, Superior and Commonwealth courts (the latter to be established in 1970).

Under this proposal, the Governor would name the (now elected) jurists from a list of recommendations submitted to him by a special "Judicial Qualification Committee."

The proposal is generally backed within the legal fraternity. Attorney General William C. Sennett summed up his view this way:

"The plan not only effectively secures the best available talent but also provides a reliable method for securing a competent and independent judiciary."

body up here keep up with the times?"

"Take it easy," whispered Caution. "Go downstairs and have some lemonade and before you know it, you'll feel as cool as a cucumber."

Now, really! How can a man live with a crowd like that? By slamming the door on them and stalking out. "You forgot to take down the trash!" shouted Duty. His voice was as clear as a bell.

"Hey, you up there in the logic lobes! Is a bell as clear as crystal?"

This Is the Way It Is

If you are married and have two children, you must earn $14,440 in 1969 to buy what $5,000 of gross income bought a man in precisely your position in 1939. You must, in blunt summary, earn 188.8 percent MORE today just to be standing EVEN with your counterpart of 30 years ago today.

This is the extent to which your dollar has been eroded by the relentless rise in the cost of living and in both federal income taxes and Social Security taxes during this period of war—great and small, hot and cold.

And mind you, I am not adding the "bite" in your dollar taken by boating state and local income taxes, property taxes, sales taxes, commuter taxes, etc., etc. If this "gobble" were included, you'd have to be running even faster to stand still.

If you are married and have two children, you must earn

$6,332 this year to buy what $5,000 bought a man in your position as recently as 10 years ago. You must earn 26.64 percent MORE, the Tax Foundation has just calculated, just to stand EVEN with where you were only a decade ago.

If you are a typical factory worker with three dependents, any pay hike you've received in the past 12 months has been more than WIPED OUT by the slump in the buying power of your dollar plus the increase in your federal income and Social Security taxes (again, no other taxes included). Your "real spendable earnings"—your earnings after adjustment for price increases, federal income and Social Security taxes—are actually 3.10 of 1 per cent LOWER than at this time in 1968.

And if you had put $100 in cash in your safe deposit box in 1939 to have handy "just in case" and you take it out now, this sum will buy you only $38 of goods, shelter and clothing in 1969. If you had put the $100 away as recently as 1957-59 and you need it now, it'll buy you only $79 of the essentials of life.

What I'm trying to say here is far more than a simple recital of the impact of a continuing and recently accelerating inflation.

What I am trying to smash home to you via these dramatic figures are the realities of inflation and taxes—for only when you face these realities will you stop kidding yourself and will you start adopting the money management policies which will help protect your family.

Let's look at this another way. Say you're a $12,000 a year man with a wife and two teenagers at home. Say that you have a good job, a house in the suburbs and this year you're earning $4,500 more than the $7,500 at which you started in 1958.

But do you have $4,500 more to spend on your family and house than 10 years ago? Of course not! As the Tax Foundation figures it, you have a mere $1,954 left of that $4,500 of raises.

More specifically, the rise in your federal, state and local taxes and your Social Security taxes has erased $2,055 of your income hikes, the Tax Foundation estimates. The rise in your cost of living has wiped out another $489 of your after-tax increase.

Even assuming we soon start to slow down this price spiral and assuming we eventually return to an acceptable annual pace of rise in the cost of living—which I will assume—the long-term trend of living costs is UP and the long-term trend of the dollar's buying power is DOWN. This is the history of industrial nations and paper currencies.

SBA Seeks Delinquent $100,000 On Mafia-Linked Building Loan

NORTH BAY VILLAGE, Fla. (AP) — The Small Business Administration, already under fire for loans to a Mafia-linked New York firm, is trying quietly to collect a delinquent $100,000 loan it made here on an apartment building with Mafia connections.

After a 1965 hurricane struck this island—identified as a retreat for underworld figures high and low—the SBA loaned $100,000 in disaster aid funds to Marve A. Dubin and his Harbour Tower Development and Harbour Tower Operating Corps.

The loan was made despite this lengthy string of warning flags:

—The regular presence in the apartment building of Thomas (Tommy the Enforcer) Altamura, who told police interroga-tors he managed the apartment and who had been identified in government hearings as a Mafia member.

—A $52,673 suit by the government pending against Dubin at the time for back taxes.

—A $24,112 tax lien by the Internal Revenue Service against Harbour Tower Operating Corp.

—Dubin's role in the swindle Bank in Miami—a case which federal investigators had specifically called to the SBA's attention.

—A $23,239 unsatisfied judgment obtained against Dubin by Five Points bank.

—A mortgage for $2,050,000 on the apartment property although the land cost only $140,000 and the building $1.2 million—values supported by the fact that the whole package brought $1.7 million when the Teamsters Union sold it six months ago.

Added to all this, the SBA hired Malvin Englander as its attorney to close the loan and disburse the money despite the fact that Englander had been secretary of Harbour Tower Development Corp. and was Dubin's personal attorney. Englander is now under indictment for bribery in connection with zoning matters he dealt with as a Miami Beach city councilman.

Asked about the loan, SBA headquarters in Washington said it had made a credit check on Dubin but that security checks are not made on disaster-loan applicants. SBA said it knew Englander had been an officer of the firm, but the agency pointed out, he was not an officer at the time the loan was granted.

The SBA said a reputable appraiser had set a value of $2.6 million on the property in May 1964—before either loan was made. The property did not bring a price near that when it was sold.

Dubin has since lost the property on a foreclosure suit and is the object of a government search because he still hasn't been served with a suit filed in Baltimore last October to collect on the delinquent SBA loan. He also faces trial in Nassau County, New York, as an unrelated grand larceny charge.

Investigators for the House Banking Committee soon will go to Miami to probe details of the loan. They already are investigating SBA loans made to Mafia-associated ANR Leasing Corp. of New York. These loans were repaid recently amid a congressional uproar.

The Harbour Tower apartment building is a 12-story structure built in the early 1960s on Harbor Island in Biscayne Bay near Miami. It is in the community of North Bay Village.

Russell Foster, 19, of Peekskill, a student at Sullivan Community College was killed early Sunday when his automobile failed to negotiate a curve along a rural road near here and struck a tree.

Westmoreland Says Dissenters Should Provide Plan for Change

WAYNE, Pa. (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff, said Sunday that Americans who dissent, if they must, should emulate the revolutionary patriots who wrote the Declaration of Independence and provide a plan for change.

"Those men (the patriots) were not destructive," said Westmoreland, former commander in Vietnam, in a chapel sermon to some 1,200 cadets of the Valley Forge Military Academy. "They offered suggestions for the public will, which is what is absent today in the kind of dissent we see all around us."

Westmoreland, acknowledging he made a similar speech in the same chapel six years ago, said "our patriots offered a cure for those things they wanted to change, which is much different than those who want to change things today."

There were reports that anti-war demonstrators planned to greet Westmoreland on his arrival by Army helicopter on the academy's athletic field. Local police patrols were tripled, but no pickets appeared.

Everything was beautiful and sunny—for a morning in church, an afternoon reviewing the cadets, and a luncheon attended by U.S. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., federal and state judges, and prominent businessmen and politicians.

Westmoreland told the cadets it was important they build sound character "because strength of character is never out of date."

He said the present brand of protestors don't have such strength "because that which is non-productive is generally due to lack of character."

The four-star general lashed out at those "elements in our society who have lost the feeling of patriotism; who are only degenerating not generating; who offer nothing constructive, only destructive; whose actions are not of service, but of disservice."

"This type of conduct is not for you, and not for responsible youths of this great country," Westmoreland added.

After he finished, the entire corps—plus some 500 of their parents and families—stood up and applauded and cheered.

Lt. Gen. Milton G. Baker, academy superintendent, said it was the first time in the 40 years he's been attending chapel services that any sermon speaker was given a standing ovation.

During the Corps review, Westmoreland pinned two medals on the uniform of Cadet 1st Capt. Michael N. Gray, 19, New York City, the regimental commander. He was honored as the outstanding cadet.

S. Viet Feels Americans Are 'Too Anxious to Get Peace'

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese leaders appear to be worried that President Nixon's search for peace with results in pressure in the United States for concessions to the National Liberation Front.

Premier Tran Van Huong told The Associated Press in an interview that "the Americans are too anxious to get peace." President Nguyen Van Thieu is seeking an early meeting with President Nixon to coordinate policy.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, winding up a four-day visit to South Vietnam, has been told privately by some political leaders that they would like to see an American presence continued here even after a peace settlement. According to Vietnamese sources, the politicians told Rogers this would strengthen the country's economy and security.

The theme of official comment on Nixon's peace speech last Wednesday has been that it was reassuring to the South Vietnamese. Nixon pledged anew he would not abandon the war nor bargain away their right of self-determination. His firm line on these points was obviously welcome.

Thieu's call for a meeting with Nixon came Saturday, a day after he and his top officials had spent five hours talking with Rogers. Their discussion ranged over a wide list of subjects from the Paris peace talks, to the state of the war, to Thieu's land reform program.

Thieu's call for a meeting with Nixon made clear, however, that he feels much more coordination is necessary. The purpose of a summit talk, he said, would be "to set up a common policy in this situation." He did not specify questions on which he would like agreement.

Premier Huong, who says Nixon's talk was "very clear, cut, tough and timely," criticized in the interview what he called American "lack of patience" in dealing with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

"The Americans are too anxious to get peace," he said.

Huong was asked whether he thought the United States would try to impose on South Vietnam a coalition government—bringing in elements of the National Liberation Front. He said the United States had declared it would not interfere with South Vietnam's domestic affairs and "the Americans always live up to their pledges."

Private conversations with high Vietnamese officials leave no doubt, however, that this is prospectively the critical issue of the next stage of peace negotiations—assuming the NLF and Hanoi are willing to go into active bargaining.

The NLF has proposed formation of a coalition government. It seems to be aiming at a negotiated coalition which after peace was established would hold elections and through this provide a new, permanent coalition structure in South Vietnam. The U.S. position is that such issues must be worked out by the South Vietnamese themselves, not by the Americans and North Vietnam. However, U.S. officials say that if their advice is asked by Thieu it will probably be given.

FCC Awaiting Outcome Of Challenge to Pay TV

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission appears inclined to await the outcome of a court challenge to its contested pay television plan before approving any applications.

At the same time, the agency is said to be prepared to let its proposed pay TV rules go into effect on schedule June 12.

The holdup would come, sources say, at the ultimate stage of permitting actual operations.

The limited system which the FCC authorized last December now is the subject of a nationwide petition campaign backed by the National Association of Theater Owners. The petitions are being circulated at shopping centers, pegged to this slogan: "Save Your Free TV."

It is this same association which is contesting the FCC proposal in the Court of Appeals here, with a decision hoped for this fall.

The FCC's rules provide that no community may have more than one subscription operation, and that only in towns which, in addition to pay TV, get service from at least four conventional TV stations.

The House Commerce Committee meanwhile appears to be waiting in the wings before scheduling any hearings on the issue.

The committee in each of the past two years has called on the FCC to delay action on pay TV. In 1968, the vote was 16-13 on a resolution expressing the committee position.

The theater owners, in their campaign against pay TV, have run newspaper advertisements calling pay TV in any form "a massive public giveaway to private interests."

The advertisements said it would mean a new monthly bill for consumers and suggested a letter-writing campaign to Congress to try and stop the FCC. Opponents claim the agency has exceeded its authority.

In a "fact sheet" put out by the FCC this month, the agency says motion picture theater owners undoubtedly are concerned about the new service because pay TV programming would be expected to consist primarily of current feature films.

Under a pay TV system, the subscriber pays for the programs he views that are sent by station in a scrambled signal. Only those who pay the fee get the signal in intelligible form.

Robert Sudmeyer: New President of Penn Furnace

By BOB CLEVER

Robert Sudmeyer of Linde Ag, Germany, a leading dairy equipment producer in Europe, was named president of Pennsylvania Furnace and Iron Company of Warren by Dairy Equipment Products Company, Madison, Wisconsin, and took over in his official capacity there on April 15, 1969. The Warren company was purchased by Dairy Equipment Products Company, Charles K. Albrecht, president, on December 15, 1968.

Sudmeyer soon learned after taking over the reins as president of P.F. & I. that he would not have to look further than its present employees to find a complement of capable personnel to continue building the company as an even more progressive producer of bulk tanks and furnaces.

In one of his first conferences with its former president, Howard Lauffenburger, who is now executive vice president, Sudmeyer complimented the personnel by saying: "They are willing, they are good and they are running. I am sure that we will make this company even more successful. This is the most important thing."

He told Lauffenburger that P.F. & I. would operate as an autonomous division of the Dairy Equipment Company and that any changes in operations or personnel would be effected locally.

In establishing an esprit de corps, Sudmeyer let the people know that the decision was his regarding personnel; and in one of his first reports to Madison, he assured them that extensive personnel changes would not be necessary.

Sudmeyer made his decision to accept the new position at P.F. & I. shortly after announcement of the purchase was made by Dairy Equipment Products in November of 1968. On the invitation of Charles K. Albrecht, the new owner, he visited the plant from his native Germany in December, 1968. It was then that he accepted Albrecht's offer of the presidency, and he then returned to Germany to prepare for the change.

Why was it necessary to bring Robert Sudmeyer from Germany to Warren to tell a well-established, willing group of employees how to run the business with which many had been associated for years?

The 38-year old president of Dairy Equipment Company knew that Sudmeyer had made fantastic strides over a short period of time in the dairy equipment industry in Europe. Sudmeyer worked with Dairy Equipment on a 50-50 venture which was very successful. Albrecht knew that Sudmeyer had the administrative know-how to relate the activities of P.F. & I. as an autonomous division, to the activities of a company whose specialty equipment was for the dairy industry, whereas P.F. & I.'s bulk tanks and furnaces were for completely unrelated industries.

By his own admission, Sudmeyer thinks more as an American, business-wise, than as a German. He attributes his progressive philosophy, one which opposes traditional European thinking, to an attitude which developed among young Germans immediately following World War II.

"We wanted to forget the war and all the hell with which it was associated," Sudmeyer said; "so we went about the job of working hard to rebuild our country."

Sudmeyer feels that this spirit has waned in the present generation in Europe, as the business community has relaxed under the traditionalist attitudes of the new generation raised in an affluent society.

Sudmeyer was born in the Bielefeld area in northern Germany on December 25, 1929. After graduating from secondary school, he attended Herford College where he received his degree in agricultural engineering in 1953.

After graduation, he taught agriculture for one year at the college and then went with the Westfalia Company in 1954. Westfalia, associated with Centrico, Englewood, N. J., a competitor to the Delaval Corporation in the United States, manufactured separators, milking machines and other dairy equipment.

Sudmeyer was a visionary; he knew that there was an open market for bulk tanks in the dairy industry. Westfalia didn't follow his thinking; so he joined Linde Ag in 1959 as sales manager, for the specific purpose of entering the bulk tank field. This company, formerly part of Linde Air Products, sold cooling equipment to the dairy industry. They had a good sales organization and a good name. With the addition of the bulk tank, the brainchild of Sudmeyer, the company's gross sales exceeded $2½ million in 1965.

Sudmeyer realized that technical know-how was a vital link in his product line which would handle milk from the cow to the consumer. He then recalled his meeting with Charles Albrecht in England in 1961, and remembered that Albrecht had built his milking machine business to 43 percent of the market in England.

In 1965, Sudmeyer and Albrecht entered into a 50-50 business venture, adding the milking machine to Linde Ag's line. When the first financial report came out, Sudmeyer had almost doubled his business to a gross sales of $4 million.

In the meantime, Dairy Equipment was growing steadily in the dairy equipment industry. They controlled 80 percent of the bulk tank market in California. Their milking machine was No. 3 in the United States. They were fast growing to the status of the world's largest milk cooling equipment producer, which position they hold today. They purchased Boumatic Company in California after that company had developed a revolutionary milking machine in cooperation with the University of California. To date, Dairy Equipment has purchased the following dairy equipment-related industries: Damrow Brothers, cheese machine producers, Fond du Lac, Wisc.; Globe Co., stainless steel tanks for the dairy industry, Paramount, Calif.; Berg Electric Co., revolving display cases, Madison, Wisc.; Boumatic Co., milking machine, Ontario, Calif.; Jim Falls Dairy (50 percent ownership in the largest independent cheese manufacturer in the world), Jim Falls, Wisc.; Fabdec, Elmsmere, England, and Linde Dairy, Germany.

Although the products of P.F. & I. were not for the dairy industry, Dairy Equipment considered their transport trailers an excellent entry into the oil industry. The purchase of P.F. & I., therefore, was their first big step toward diversification. In this step, they sought the services of Sudmeyer.

Sudmeyer is looking forward to establishing a home in Warren when his wife, Waltraud, and their three children, Eki 12, Riki 11 and Erne 2, join him after school is out in June.

"I feel at home already here," Sudmeyer said. "It is very similar in climate and topography to my home in Germany, except that here the winters are colder and the summers are hotter. I find the people very friendly."

Warren County To Send 4 Representatives To State Meet

By DAVE PIRILLO

MEADVILLE — For the second straight year, the Trojans of McDowell have walked away with District 10 track and field honors. This time it was by some 33½ points over their nearest rival—Franklin.

The over-powering Erie area team copped seven of eighteen individual titles in a day that saw six new records set.

Almost as impressive as McDowell's triumph, was Paul Chimenti of Erie Tech. The sensational hurdler was a triple winner. His 14.9 took the high hurdles, while a 19.3 in the low hurdles set a new District 10 record. His third event was a leg of the winning 800 relay team.

McDowell set its lone record in the two-mile relay. The Trojan horses galloped around the track in 8:04. This broke the record set by Warren in 1966 by thirteen seconds.

As a matter of fact, two other records set by Warren in previous years were toppled. Bay Lawrence took care of the triple jump mark held by the late Jim Belchner, when he hopped, skipped and jumped to 43 feet 6¾ inches. Sam Dinger vaulted over the District height of 12 feet 6¼ inches, thus cracking the mark held by Larry Jordan and Chuck Armstrong since 1965.

Oil City's Rick Weaver ran the 880 in 1:59.8 beating the mark held by Tolbert of Erie Strong Vincent for seven years. Speaking of Strong Vincent, its Chuck White motored around the eight laps of the two mile in 9:56.8 to better the previous time mark by 12 seconds.

Warren, at the end of the day, accounted for 23 points and a fourth place tie with Oil City. Of those points, Ed O'Neil and Jeff Hunter assured themselves an entry in the PIAA state finals, next weekend.

O'Neil finished second in the javelin toss with a fling of 192 feet 6 inches, while Hunter's vault of 12 feet 3 inches placed him a runner-up to Dinger.

The Dragons highly touted 880 relay team met with heartbreak. In the first leg of the event, Joe Cauley pulled a muscle in his thigh, and the remainder of the team was unable to make up for lost ground.

Eagles Finish 2nd In District Track

By ROB SCHORMAN

MEADVILLE—Warren County schools gave a generally strong account of themselves as the Youngsville Eagles barely missed bringing home the winners' trophy and Eisenhower totaled 17½ team points in the District Ten Class B track meet which was held here last Saturday.

The Eagles finished second to Harbors Creek in the team competition by only four points, as Youngsville collected 31 points to 35 for the Huskies. The Knights' point total left them eighth in a field of 18 teams.

Paul Yucha led the way for the Eagles by winning the long jump with a leap of 21½', placing second in the triple jump, and running a leg on Youngsville's third-place 880 relay team.

Martin Hoffner was the Knights' big winner, as he cleared six feet for a first in the high jump, grabbed a third in the 120-yard high hurdles, and tied for fifth in the long jump.

Gary Phanco's fourth place finish in the long jump made it Youngsville's strongest entry of the meet. The Eagles also placed a pair of athletes in the discus, where Duane Benedict took fourth and John Campbell picked up a fifth.

John Etter and Bob Long each placed in one individual event and ran in a relay team that finished in the top five. Long was third in the 880 and ran anchor on the two mile relay team, which finished fourth. Etter picked up a fourth in the 100 yard dash and also was a member of the 880 relay team.

Tom Burrell and Mike Morrison each grabbed a fourth for the Eagles, Burrell in the high jump and Morrison in the mile.

Other Ike athletes who placed include Gary Dalrymple, third in the pole vault, Harry Wilkins, third in the shot put, and Andy Bosco, a fourth in the 880.

Next Saturday Hoffner and Yucha will test their skills against the best in Pennsylvania when they travel to University Park to compete in the annual P.I.A.A. State Track Meet.

Carlos Shines At Benefit Meet

Bob Seagren, 22-year-old Californian, took a crack at a world record in the pole vault before winning the event at 17 feet, 7 inches. Seagren, who set the world record of 17-8 last September at Lake Tahoe, tried three times to go over at 18 feet but failed. On the last try, he never even reached the bar. Seagren also holds the Olympic mark of 17-8½ set last fall in Mexico City.

Davenport skimmed the hurdles in 13.3, just one-tenth of a second short of the world record despite a hand that was spliced by third-place finisher Irv Hall during the running of the race. Davenport had four stitches taken before being sent to a nearby hospital for further treatment.

Carlos won the 200-meter race from a star spangled field which included three medal winners at the event at Mexico City last year. He was clocked in 20.3 as he took the lead coming out of the one turn and beat 400 meter world recordholder Lee Evans by about five yards.

Graham Hill Motors To Fifth Monte Carlo Grand Prix Title

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Defending champion Graham Hill of England outlasted a dwindling field Sunday and captured his fifth Monte Carlo Grand Prix in the same Lotus Ford he won with last year.

Hill's half lap victory over the tortuous 106-mile circuit vaulted him into second place in the world Formula One championship.

ships behind Scotland's Jackie Stewart, the favorite in the race.

Stewart was one of eight who didn't finish in the field of 15 as he dropped out in the 23rd lap of the 80-lap test with a broken rear drive shaft on his blue Mafra Ford. He had led the first 22 laps, breaking the track record five times.

Piers Courage of England, in a Brabham Ford, finished second, followed by Switzerland's Jo Siffert in another Lotus Ford.

Richard Attwood of England, in a Lotus, took fourth; Bruce McLaren of New Zealand, in a McLaren, fifth; Dennis Hulme of New Zealand, in a McLaren, sixth, and Vic Elford of England, in a Cooper-Maserati, was seventh.

Most of the other drivers gave up during the first 20 laps as more than 250,000 persons, including Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco, watched the race under cloudy skies.

Dickinson Fights Tension To Rally For Colonial Win

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Gardner Dickinson, dropping half-smoked cigarette butts and birdie putts with monotonous regularity, charged in with a brilliant 66 Sunday and won the $25,000 first prize in the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament.

Dickinson, a 41-year-old veteran and a Ben Hogan look-alike, finished with a 72-hole total of 276, two under par on the 7,175-yard, par 70 Colonial Country Club course.

Dickinson, slim almost to the point of being gaunt, came from four strokes off the pace, broke out of a four-way tie after 63 holes with a birdie on No. 10, and subdued his last challenge — from South African Gary Player — with another bird on 16, a hole Player bogeyed.

Player, competing for the first time since winning the rich Tournament of Champions last month, closed with a birdie putt on 18 for 69 and second place at 279.

Don January, a former PGA champion, finished with another 69 and third place at 280, even par. He was the only man in the star-studded field to match par over the tough, reconstructed course and Player and Dickinson, a one-time assistant to the immortal Hogan, were the only men to beat it.

New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles and Big Jack Nicklaus tied for fourth at 282, Charles after a final round 68 and Nicklaus with a 71.

Veteran Billy Maxwell and Australian Bruce Crampton, who shared the lead going into the final day's play, each had their troubles. Maxwell blew to a 78 and was well back in the field at 286.

Crampton went to a 75 for 283. He was tied with Bob Lunn, 67; Canadian George Knudson, 66, and Dave Hill, 68.

It was the first Colonial victory for Dickinson, who was competing in this prestigious event for the 15th time. And it was his seventh tour victory, the last the 1968 Doral Open.

A birdie on the 12th put him two strokes in front, but Player began making his move, ramming in birdie putts of 20 and 30 feet on Nos. 13 and 14 and moved into a tie for the top spot.

But the issue was settled on the 16th. Dickinson got a 14-footer for a bird and moments later Player went into a trap on the same hole, blasted by the hole and missed an eight footer coming back for a bogey.

That gave Dickinson a two-shot lead, and he parred in.

The $125,000 event saw Arnold Palmer rebound from a third round 80 with a 69 for 290. Defending champion Billy Casper closed with a par of 76 for 297. Masters champion George Archer had a 75 for 294 and PGA champ Julius Boros had a 74 for 292.

Final scores and money winnings Sunday in the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament on the 7,175-yard, par 70 Colonial Country Club course:

G. Dickinson	$25,000	66-278
Gary Player	$14,300	69-279

Bruce Crampton	$3,890	75-283
Frank Beard	$3,125	67-284

Peptone Wins Pair

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Peptone hit a three-run homer in the first game and led off the ninth inning of the nightcap with his 11th homer of the season, giving the New York Yankees a 3-1, 1-0 doubleheader sweepover California Sunday that extended their winning streak to five.

Peptone lined knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm's first pitch in the ninth into the right field bleachers at Yankee Stadium. The blast broke up a scoreless duel and gave reliever Steve Hamilton his first victory of the season.

The Angels took a 1-0 lead in the third inning of the opener, and Andy Messersmith held it through the sixth.

But Jerry Kenney and Bobby Murcer singled in the seventh and Peptone socked his 10th homer into the lower right field stands.

Mel Stottlemyre checked the Angels the rest of the way, scattering eight hits in all, for his sixth victory against three defeats. He had lost three straight after winning his first five.

Rookie Bill Burbach held the Angels hitless through the first six innings of the second game, increasing his hitless inning streak to 11-2-3.

But Rick Reichardt led off the seventh by beating out a grounder to deep short for a single, Roger Repoz followed with another infield single, a dribbler down the third base line.

Jay Johnstone then popped to the Angels and Aurelio Rodriguez was walked intentionally, loading the bases.

Hamilton then relieved Burbach and pitched out of the jam, getting pinch hitter Bubba Morton to force Reichardt at the plate and retiring Dick Stuart, another pinch hitter, on a pop to short.

George Brunet limited the Yankees to four hits before Stuart batted for him.

Probe Puts Hospital Revenue Agents on Spot

HARRISBURG (AP) — Some 60 state hospital revenue agent jobs will be opened to competitive civil service bidding as a result of a just-completed probe of wide-scale inefficiencies and irregularities in hospital financial operations.

The probe was ordered by Gov. Shafer in February after then Aud. Gen. Grace M. Sloan charged "outright falsification of records" and a general policy of writing off all small accounts as bad debts existed in the 10 state general hospitals.

The administration investigation corroborated many of Mrs. Sloan's allegations and added that at Ashland State General Hospital, information was uncovered indicating that Capitol Blue Cross Inc. had been overcharged by "thousands of dollars."

The probe, headed by Ronald E. Zechman, the governor's director of financial management, covered all 10 state general hospitals. Another facet of the case, handled by Robert West, Justice Department director of investigations, spilled over into the state mental institutions' operations.

After examining the Zechman report, Revenue Secretary Warner M. Depuy asked the governor to convert the 57 state hospital revenue agents under his jurisdiction from patronage to civil service jobs.

He said that while it "will not provide an immediate solution to the problems that we have been experiencing, it will gradually provide administrative continuity within the revenue office management which will be free of political entanglements."

Shafer has accepted Depuy's recommendation. All that remains for it to become effective is routine approval by the state executive board — which is chaired by Shafer and made up of seven of his cabinet members, including Depuy.

Under Depuy's plan, all current revenue agents would be retained "only by successfully qualifying in an open, competitive examination" with other potential candidates.

Depuy also recommended pay scales be upgraded when the jobs are switched to civil service to draw the best candidates for the jobs. Currently, revenue agents start as low as $5,300 yearly, Depuy called for a starting minimum of $7,400 annually.

Since the Sloan audits were released, three revenue agents have left the state payroll and a fourth was placed "on probation" by Depuy.

Kenneth Watkins, revenue agent-in-charge at Ashland State General Hospital, resigned in the wake of the Sloan audit of his office's books in February.

William E. Abbott of Philipsburg, a traveling revenue agent, was fired in March and Stewart M. Dunsmore, agent-in-charge at Philipsburg State General Hospital, was placed on probation.

Frank J. Andreuzzi, agent-in-charge at Hazleton State General Hospital, resigned during a routine audit of his office's books by Depuy's staff in March.

As a result of an investigation by West, embezzlement charges were filed in March against John P. Davis, revenue agent at Western State School and Hospital in Canonsburg.

Among the findings in the Zechman study of state general hospitals were:

— "Balances of $20 or less were written off with little or no attempt made to collect the amount due... In some cases, patients were advised to pay only enough to reduce the account balance below $20 with the unpaid amount being written off."

— At Ashland State, "we discovered that Blue Cross was being billed on numerous occasions for more than the actual amount due... this practice has resulted in Blue Cross being overbilled for thousands of dollars."

— Bookkeeping procedures in the hospitals were so ineffectual that, in many cases, it was impossible to balance the books during the test audit.

Zechman made a number of recommendations for streamlining the departmental operations which Shafer said would be implemented.

Zechman also suggested the financial operation of the hospitals be turned over to the Public Welfare Department which "has a vested interest in collection of patients' bills."

Shafer, however, did not accept the proposal.

Stopping accidents generally occur because the stopping vehicle has obstructed traffic unexpectedly, according to the Institute for Safer Living. The defensive driver continually analyzes and reacts to conditions so that no situation develops which makes his stop unexpected to a following driver. Knowing how to stop safely and where to stop safely, he makes all needed stops safely.

Twister Damages More Than Half the Homes in Sinclairville, N.Y.

ONCE A HOUSE

The tornado ripping through Sinclairville, N.Y., Saturday evening did not spare this double house. The storm tore the building from its foundation and blew off walls and roof. The Henry Blanchard and Jack Murtaugh families

SINCLAIRVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — More than 1,500 volunteers, police and utility representatives worked Sunday to restore order to this southwestern New York hamlet struck Saturday evening by a tornado.

The twister caused damage to more than half the homes in the village area, but miraculously only one minor injury was reported.

State Police said the tornado touched down about 7 p.m. in the southwest corner of the community of 800 persons and then "in a bouncing action" skipped through the center of the hamlet.

It destroyed or seriously damaged 10 homes, one business, three automobiles and two house trailers.

The storm ripped the steeple and roof off Park Methodist Church and broke stained glass windows.

The U.S. Weather Bureau in Buffalo said the storm "apparently was a full-fledged tornado."

A spokesman said there were no observers in the Sinclairville area but the storm "behaved in the normal pattern of tornadoes."

He said New York has about two such storms each year, "nearly always in the spring when warm and cold air masses meet." Winds in a funnel cloud had been estimated at between 250 to 300 miles an hour, he said.

Rain pelted the area immediately following the storm and continued on and off throughout the night.

Sinclairville insurance man George W. Priest, undersheriff for Chautauqua County, estimated damage at $500,000.

"I'm not too sure what it hit, but it did hit something because there was suddenly a lot of wood and some small trees flying about," Joseph F. Pokrzywka from nearby Dunkirk said.

He had just driven through the Chautauqua County community, about 14 miles north of the City of Jamestown.

Pokrzywka said, "The first thing I saw was a series of clouds swirling around about 50 to 100 yards above the surface of the countryside. I also noticed that ground fog seemed to be sucked up into the clouds swirling around."

By late afternoon Sunday, power had been restored to about 80 per cent of the homes and telephone service was available to a few of the residents in the outlying areas.

Mayor Robert Peterson officially declared a state of emergency and called a meeting of town officials for Monday morning to determine the community's needs.

The mayor said at least 61 homes suffered some damage. It ranged from broken windows to those totally destroyed.

The only injury reported was suffered by Mrs. Jessie Nickerson. She and her son had just gotten inside a building when a window blew in and the glass cut her legs.

About nine cows were killed when a barn collapsed on them. Several other barns were also seriously damaged.

Many of the families had a good look at the storm as it raced towards them. Many rushed to their cellars.

Mayor Robert T. Peterson said an emergency aid center would open at 1 p.m. today at the old Sinclairville elementary school. The new school is being used as temporary shelter for some of those who lost their homes.

Police found their hands full with curiosity seekers who jammed Rt. 60 for 10 solid hours Sunday and three and a half hours Saturday night. Some cars were bearing license plates from Buffalo, Pennsylvania and Canada.

DAMAGE FROM TREES

Although some of the damage in Sinclairville was due to a direct hit by the swirling winds of the tornado much of the destruction was caused by uprooted trees falling against buildings. Such

INSIDE OUT

The pickup truck turned on its side on a concrete platform before Saturday's storm sat upright on the platform which was the floor of a garage. The roof almost intact was lifted and dropped to one side and a portion of a wall of the garage lies against it. The storm came to Sinclairville a little after 7 p.m. Two hours later the weather bureau reported that the storm had dissipated and was no longer a threat.

ONE WALL LEFT

The tornado swept up Jamestown st., the main thoroughfare in Sinclairville. While buildings on the north side of the street were practically untouched by the fury of the wind, the south side was demolished. Located on the south side

AFTER THE STORM—HOME

After the tornado these chickens returned to a henhouse reduced to kindling wood. It was the same story for many of the humans who live in Sinclairville. Sinclairville is a small community with a population of only 800. The 10 plus homes destroyed or severely damaged by the storm represented a good share of the housing in the community. Many residents saw the storm in the distance and fled to their basements for safety. A helter skelter pile of boards and furnishings greeted some of them when they emerged later.

CLEARING DEBRIS

As soon as clearing work was able to be begun, the call went out for chain saws to clear the multitude of trees that blocked streets and lay precariously against buildings. Volunteers from scores of volunteer fire companies were on the scene but they were hampered by the falling darkness and the pelting rain that continued after the tornado passed.

A BARN LOST

Lee Sylvester looks over the remains of his barn which was smashed when the storm hit shortly after 7 p.m. Saturday. When the tornado struck, Sylvester's hired man, Frank Fisk, was milking cows where the photo shows scattered hay and unended beams. Several cows were killed but Fisk suffered only

STREET SCENE

A reconstructed view of East st. in Sinclairville before Saturday night would have shown it a shady quiet street. No more. The twister uprooting, snapping and otherwise doing violence to whatever stood in its path smashed to bits the trees along East st. The falling trees in turn tore down telephone and electric lines and left the town utterly without communication with the outside. Fallen trees and debris also blocked the roads except for a single route to the west. The storm cut a path a quarter of a mile wide as it moved through the area.

REFLECTIONS

By Betty Rice

Here's another recipe from the kitchen of Mrs. Rockwell O'Sheill, 504 Fourth avenue, Warren — ARTICHOKES WITH CRAB STUFFING: 2 6½-ounce cans (2 cups) crab meat, drained; 1 cup cubed process Swiss cheese; 1/3 cup chopped green pepper, ¼ cup finely chopped onion; 1 tsp. salt; ½ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing; 2 tsp. lemon juice and 5 cooked medium artichokes. Break crab meat in chunks; toss with cheese, green pepper, onion and salt. Blend mayonnaise and lemon juice; add to crab mixture and toss lightly. Remove small center leaves of each artichoke, leaving a cup. Carefully remove choke. Fill artichokes with crab mixture; place in large casserole or baking dish. Pour hot water around artichokes to depth of one inch. Cover and bake in 350 degree oven about 35 minutes or until heated through. Makes 5 servings. Sue said it's a quick dish, too.

TO EAT ARTICHOKES: You eat the leaves too! Tear off one leaf at a time and dunk it in melted butter, mayonnaise or peppery sauce. Then you eat just the tender base of the leaf — turn it upside down, bite and pull. Under stuffing, you'll find the heart — eat it with a fork.

"From Our Kitchens" comes a recipe by Mrs. Ruel Smith of Warren — JACKPOT CASSEROLE: Sauté - 1 lb. hamburger; ¼ cup chopped onion; 1 tbsp. fat; add No. 2 can of tomato soup; 1 ½ cups water; 4 oz. medium noodles; Simmer 15 minutes; add No. 2 can cream style corn; ½ cup chopped ripe olives; 1 tsp. salt and pepper; 1 cup grated cheddar cheese — reserve some for top. Simmer 8-10 minutes. Place in buttered casserole. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Top with grated cheese until bubbly.

Now for a recipe for SPINACH BACON SALAD: Add 6 quartered garlic cloves to ¼ cup of french dressing and let stand two hours. 1 lb. or 2 quarts of fresh, crisp spinach, cut up; 3 hard cooked eggs, chopped; 8 slices bacon, fried, drained and crumbled. Combine ingredients. Remove garlic from dressing and add dressing. Toss well.

Perhaps one of our readers will provide this recipe that would bring pleasure and happiness to a blind man at Warren Age Center, who needs a violin. It is said he plays very well but his present instrument is so old and worn out, one can hardly hear it. Since he loves to play, is there anyone who might give him a violin in good condition that may be in an attic collecting dust? If so, contact the Age Center at 800 Pennsylvania ave. w.

United In Marriage

Lander United Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding at 12 noon, May 17, 1969 of the wedding of Sandra Ann Muschick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Muschick, R. D. 1-A, Russell, Pa. and Barry Wayne Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Thompson, R. D. 2, Sugar Grove, Pa.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Marvin Watson before an altar decorated with two baskets of white flowers. Mrs. Nanci Maeder provided organ music and Miss Cindy Custer, Falconer, N. Y. was soloist.

The bride, escorted by her father, appeared in a floor length gown of white organza made with fitted bodice, short sleeves and high neckline. The bodice and neckline were accented with rows of ruffled val lace. The full bouffant skirt extended into a chapel length train banded with ruffled val lace from waist to hemline.

Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a lace Juliet cap with pearlized orange blossoms around the edge and small detail bow at the back. She carried a hand bouquet of lilies of the valley and white hyacinth buds. Mrs. Joan DeWalt, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore an orchid floor length gown and matching bouffant bustle veil. She carried a hand bouquet of violets and pink carnations.

Dressed the same as the honor attendant, bridesmaids were Mrs. Evelyn Lestyk, a friend of the bride, Rochester, N. Y.; Mrs. Linda Bergman, the bride's cousin, Hampton, Va.; Miss Denise Pohl, a cousin from Pittsburgh and another cousin of the bride, Miss Jeanne Muschick of Warren, Ohio.

Miss Luanna Lestyk, Rochester, N. Y., was flower girl and carried a white basket of violets and babies breath. Ringbearer was Master Leonard DeWalt of Russell, the bride's nephew.

Elmer Gourley served as the bridegroom's best man and James Fredericks was second groomsmen. Ushers were John Brown, Bud Ericson, Jamestown, N. Y. and Tracy Thompson Jr., brother of the bridegroom.

The bride's mother wore a dress of mint green linen with matching accessories and green miniature carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom chose royal blue jersey with white accessories and miniature carnation corsage. The wedding reception for 225 guests was held at Melody Inn in Busti, N. Y. where orchid and white streamers and a centerpiece for the bridal table were featured. Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Thorpe were master and mistress of ceremonies and aides were Miss Judy Weimer, Miss Gail Gilbert, Mrs. Lois Zamborik, Miss Cheryl Perry and Mrs. Kay Wade.

For a honeymoon trip to Maine, the bride wore a dress of ivory and beige with ivory accessories. The couple will reside at R. D. 1-A, Russell.

The bride is a 1966 graduate of Eisenhower High School and is presently employed at Blackstone Corp. in Jamestown, N. Y. The bridegroom is a 1965 WAHS graduate, served two years with the U. S. Army and is presently employed with Laco of Falconer, N. Y.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by Miss Joan DeWalt, Mrs. Marvin Thorpe, Miss Cindy Custer, Mrs. Donna Hale, Miss Judy Werner and Mrs. Max Werner.

The rehearsal dinner was given at the bridegroom's home.

A Reminder

Members of the Warren Garden Club are reminded that reservations for the annual luncheon must be made no later than today by calling Mrs. Charles Tranter, 723-7593. The affair will be held at the home of Mrs. Harland Rue in Barnes.

PINKEYE

Q. Is pinkeye the same as conjunctivitis? Is pinkeye contagious and what is the proper treatment?

A. "Conjunctivitis" is inflammation of the conjunctiva — the membrane lining the eyelid. Pinkeye is acute, contagious conjunctivitis due to a specific infectious agent. Pinkeye is contagious as long as the infection is present. There is no effective home remedy for pinkeye so see your doctor at once.

SEASICKNESS

Q. Why do some people get seasick and not others?

A. There is no simple explanation. It is known, however, that infants are less likely to get seasick or to have other types of motion sickness than older children and adults. Perhaps this is because the infant's nervous system is not fully developed. Susceptibility to motion sickness lessens in later years, perhaps because general responsiveness declines, or because of adaptation through experience. If movements are severe enough everybody can be made sick.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

My boys did it again . . . spilled cornflakes all over the living room floor.

Their punishment . . . ?

Vacuum it up themselves! The extension on my tank vacuum was much too long for my little ones to handle, so I took out the centerpiece of the tube, put two short pieces together and presto, it's just the right size for them.

Besides, they thought it was fun and wanted to do it all the time. Wow, it sure does help for them to do that little chore.

And what a way to teach little ones how to help out around the house.

Mrs. S. LeBie

Well, bless you!

But there even are lots of little GIRLS who wouldn't consider it a chore if only Mommy could get that vacuum down to their size. And you figured it out for us.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: I save all my pimiento jars — preferably the four-ounce size.

Then I fill them with common pins, paper clips, thumbtacks, etc., and put them in a kitchen drawer UPSIDE DOWN so I can see in a split second what I am looking for.

Elsie Lavine

DEAR HELOISE: I always carry a cake of soap now when I go to a public swimming pool.

Twice I saw children get their knees caught in the drain trough around the edge of the pool when trying to crawl out. The second time some gal opened her purse, pulled out a bar of soap and soaped around the child's knee until it came loose.

Sure saved a lot of worry for a frightened child.

Joyce Kyler

DEAR HELOISE: Occasionally I have a frozen dinner and hate to put the oven on, especially in summer. I found it easy to cook it on the top of the stove in a square cake pan. To avoid blackening, I add a little cream of tartar to the water in the pan.

Then I put a large cover over it and turn on the burner. In no time at all it's piping hot.

Mrs. M. R. H.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her daughter, Evelyn. The June meeting will be a picnic at the home of Mrs. Nellie Beckenbach, 624 Henry street.

CLERGY'S ROLE
CHICAGO (AP)—A University of Chicago theologian said during an appearance before a group of Roman Catholic priests that clergymen have a rightful place in search for solutions to social problems.

Prof. Langdon B. Gilkey said that a cleric no longer pulls "individual brands from the burning and leaves the social fire alight."

He said the priest's present role "is to help recreate humanity here and now, and that means to subvert and re-fashion -- insofar as he can -- the social and institutional structures of our common life that determine... whether man can have personal fulfillment or not."

Annual Banquet At Local Church

St. John's Lutheran Church held its annual Mother-Daughter banquet May 14 with 88 attending. A creamed chicken and biscuit dinner was served by Karl Olson, Fred Hanel, Wesley Dexter, Jeff Baker, Jeff Orth and Kerry Gern.

Lois Orth gave the blessing. Welcome and closing remarks were given by Kay Carlson. Several readings representing various age groups were presented by Alberta Poling.

DEAR WY: It's too late. The deluge has started, and the readers are against me 100 to 1. Read on:

DEAR ANN: Your advice that an indoor dog be given to a farmer is typical of the dumb things city people come up with. Farmers are already overrun with dog owners who don't know the first thing about animals.

I disagree that a nine-year-old dog cannot be housebroken. Perhaps not in his customary surroundings, but I'll bet if they build a dog house and enforce some rules, Sweetie could be taught to mind his manners. —Mrs. G.H.G.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 10 years old. I have a dog. When he wets on my mother's carpet I take some paper towels and blot it up. I use my foot. Then I pour white vinegar on the spot. It fixes everything. —Dog Lover.

DEAR ANN: Our family refuses to believe that you consider wall-to-wall carpeting more important than a child's love for his dog. We have antique oriental rugs in our home and the spots made by our nervous little poodle and our lazy golden retriever has added character to these priceless floor coverings. Shame on you, Ann. —Pittsburgh

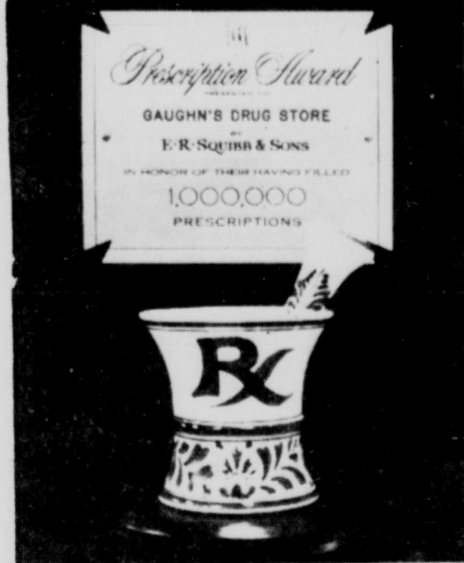

DEAR ANN: Your suggestion that a dog who has been a house pet for six years be given to a farmer was not a humane solution. To ask an aged dog to adjust to new people and new environment is unreasonable. It would be much better for the dog if they put him to sleep. —M.Y. of Williamsport.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Are you on vacation? Please come back. I can't believe you gave that stupid answer. So the dog did a few things on the rug. So what? The notion that it is perfectly O.K. to get rid of anything that presents a challenge is exactly what's wrong with society today. If you don't like school you drop out. If you don't like marriage you bust it up. If you don't like a job you quit. And now Ann Landers comes along and says if you can't housebreak your mutt give him to a farmer. Think it over, Toots. —Winnipeg.

DEAR WINNIE: I HAVE thought it over and the next time I get a letter asking for advice about a dog I'm going to consult people who have dogs. Rugs I know something about but I'm no authority on dogs and my answer proved it.

Is alcoholism a disease? How can the alcoholic be treated? Is there a cure? Read the booklet "Alcoholism—Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. (c) Publishers-Hall Syndicate.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ
Q. 1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠53 ♥AJ963 ♦J97 ♣K63
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♠
2 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—In view of the fact that partner has shown a strong hand by his free bid, we feel disposed to give him another chance. We do so in a mild way by returning to his first suit with a call of two diamonds. If partner is unable to act again, over the two diamond bid, the chance for game will not be bright.

Q. 2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠52 ♥AQ642 ♦8 ♣KJ74
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ 2 ♦ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner should be given the courtesy of the road. When an opponent makes so bold as to bid your partner's suit, you should afford him an opportunity for a penalty double. You have a potential trick in your hand. With partner bidding diamonds and spades, it is likely that he can support neither of your suits. Pass and await developments.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQJ4 ♥J1076 ♦7 ♣AKQ9
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♥ 4 ♦ ?

What do you bid?

A.—The interference has made scientific bidding impossible. The recommended procedure is to bid into a slam, which at worst, should depend on a finesse. Bid six hearts or you may employ Blackwood first as a check.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠K10742 ♥732 ♦63 ♣QJ2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♦ 2 ♦ 3 ♦ ?

What do you bid now?

A.—While under normal conditions this would be just a free bid, when partner has made a cue bid forcing to game, greater liberties may be taken in entering the auction. The enemy is obviously trying to shut you out, and confusion could well result from failure to take action at this time. Bid three spades.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠Q862 ♥KQ94 ♦K107 ♣85
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♣ 3 ♦ ?

What action do you take?

A.—Double. This is the best available choice. A free bid at the level of three is not to be considered with a four-card suit, and contracting for game at no trump would be an extreme case of over optimism. In doubtful cases it is best to play for a reasonably sure profit.

Q. 6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠QJ4 ♥AK63 ♦A7 ♣A1084
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass 1 ♠ Dbic. Pass
2 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Your chances for game are not bright. If partner's hand were worth 10 or more points he would have made a jump response to your double.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AJ10 ♥AQ92 ♦AQ864 ♣2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Four spades. Obviously it is your intention to bid no less than six diamonds. But an effort must be made to determine whether there is a grand slam in the hand and partner will be in a better position to determine that fact. Blackwood is not altogether suitable.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠3 ♥AQ65 ♦AQ1094 ♣AJ2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 4 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—The you have presumably shown the full value of your hand by your reverse bid of two hearts, you should nevertheless bid five clubs to show the ace. The fact that you have such splendid controls should induce you to take this aggressive act. Remember, partner has jumped with only one ace and at best the king and jack of diamonds.

Such Pile Relief She Can't Describe Says Mrs. H. Williams

Treatment Shrinks Piles, Relieves Pain In Most Cases

Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Hugh Williams of Louisville writes: "A good person recommended Preparation H to me and such help I can't describe. I don't know what in the world I'd without it."

(Note: Doctors have proved in most cases—Preparation H® actually shrinks inflamed hemorrhoids. In case after case, the sufferer first notices prompt relief from pain, burning and itching. Then swelling is gently reduced.

There's no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like doctor-tested Preparation H. It also lubricates to make bowel movements more comfortable, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.)

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR MONDAY, MAY 19, 1969

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Start the new week with verve and at a steady pace. Investigate the validity of new offerings. Proper restraint in all matters is advised.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—You will now be in competition with top-flight people and their activities. You can hold your own, advance some. Good ideas and eloquent speech will help; also study and a calm, straightforward manner.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—You are one who can give a warmhearted assist to a cold world. Others appreciate it, if silently. Day highly favors written matters, intellectual pursuits, artistic interests.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Lunar aspects now encourage the formulation of new devices, methods. Cooperate with bright associates in stable ventures.

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—Be your sunny, wholesome self. Don't dissipate valued qualities or waste time. Reject propositions unworthy of your attention. See to it that your talents do not congeal through inactivity.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—The emphasis is now on choosing the correct project and issues on which to shower your handiwork. No day-dreaming! LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Domestic affairs, possibly a personal matter will need some attention. However, do not neglect daily chores or business matters, either. It may be a crowded day but you can handle it.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—Crush any desire to postpone things. NOW is the time. Strike while the time is propitious and the opposition is off balance. But in your eagerness, don't swerve off onto a tangent—it would only cause delay.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Jupiter auspicious. Be observing, mindful of future needs. Especially favored: Nurses, doctors, salespeople; those engaged in finance, teaching, the legal profession.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Saturn parallels Jupiter in benefic influence. Rouse yourself to that added effort which brings sweet compensation for extra-curricular work. Stay alert, aware.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Day spells action, determination, aggressiveness. Good reasoning, astute planning advised. Bickering should be avoided.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—There's never a dull moment when you are at your best—and this is a day when you SHOULD be. There's plenty of planetary help for the honest, hopeful doer.

YOU BORN TODAY are a logical thinker and a confirmed enthusiast for action as the best means of getting things done. And where there is no rule, you will set one, often changing, to your liking, a long-standing method. This could work out as intelligent progress if you have sufficient knowledge of your subject, know WHY your way would be an improvement, and are sure you are not disrupting others' routine needlessly. Taurus rules the throat: Many renowned singers and effective speakers were born in this sector of the Zodiac. Cultivate a hobby that stimulates the mind, a diversion that soothes nerves. Emphasize your adaptability and wit. Birthdate of: Nellie Melba, opera singer.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

ACTION OF INTERFERON

The discovery of interferon in 1957 was heralded as a possible solution to viral infections and perhaps certain cancers. But the breakthrough never came. And books written on the chemical have added very little of practical value. However, the potential is there, and the substance is under extensive study.

Interferon appears in the circulation of man and animals with viral infections at the same time the victims begin to improve. It is a protective substance created by the infected cells to prevent the disease from spreading to nearby cells. In other words, it does not kill the invading viruses but prevents the critters from spreading elsewhere. We know now that organisms other than viruses also stimulate interferon production.

It is obvious that we need an effective anti-viral agent for the treatment of many common viral infections. However, the action of interferon is short-lived when injected and large amounts are needed for therapy. For this reason, the search continues for substances that stimulate the body to produce its own supply. Several interferon-inducers act like viruses and trigger its manufacture. Some are synthetic plastics and others are proteins containing double-stranded ribonucleic acids.

It has been reported that virus-inducers have been useful in experimentally produced influenza, viral skin diseases, herpes eye lesions, trachoma, and respiratory disorders caused by the adenoviruses. Similar reports involving synthetic double-stranded RNAs also have appeared.

But what about cancer and leukemia? Considering the growing evidence that certain cancers and leukemia may be of viral origin, interferon may prove helpful.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

JITTERY AFTER SURGERY

H. E. writes: Is a person nervous for some time after an abdominal operation?

REPLY
Some individuals, especially the high-strung, react in this way. Others get jittery, especially if they do not feel well or do not regain their strength. They respond poorly to stress of any kind and are upset for weeks after an accident, operation, or a death in the family.

JOINT MICE EXPLAINED

Miss O. writes: Is operation needed for mice on the knee?

REPLY
Only when there is pain, swelling, or locking of the joint. Joint mice are small pieces of bone or cartilage that have broken off into the joint.

LARGE KIDNEY STONES

A reader writes: When stones are present in the kidney, why is the organ removed in some persons and not in others?

REPLY
Every attempt is made to spare the kidney and removal is advised only when it is damaged beyond repair. The stone may have caused infection or blocked the flow of urine which led to enlargement and degeneration of the organ.

GALLAGHER

Army Specialist Four John C. Gallagher, 20, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pader, live on Route 1, Grand Valley, was assigned as a microwave radio repairman with the U.S. Army Strategic Communications Command Long Lines Area near Phu Bai, Vietnam, April 15.

The specialist, who entered the Army in August 1967, completed basic training at Ft. Dix, N.J., and was last stationed at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz.

He is a 1967 graduate of Youngsville High School.

Aviation Boatswain's Mate Airman Apprentice Donald E. Keefe, USN, son of Mrs. Marian A. Cusimano of 948 Warren road, Frewsburg, N.Y., is serving at the U.S. Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

Engineer Fireman James T. Collander, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Collander of 19 Crossman st., Jamestown, was aboard the USS Laffey visiting Portsmouth.

BLEECH

Sgt. Ted Bleech, 5th Tactical Control Group, Clark AB Philippines was one of two noncommissioned officers who averted a possible Easter Sunday disaster at Blue Beach near Dagupan City, Philippines. They rescued a young girl who was being carried out to sea by a strong undertow. A couple who were riding in an inner tube was also rescued by the two men.

Almost 99 out of 100 servicemen now have the low cost Servicemen's Group Life Insurance which costs $2 per month for $10,000 coverage or $1 for $5,000.

New Bill Would Affect Moving Mobile Homes

(TMO Harrisburg Bureau) HARRISBURG — The half-way mark has been reached in the passage of several bills through the Legislature affecting either Warren County or its political subdivisions.

Among measures approved by the House of Representatives and sent now to the Senate for consideration is one that would prohibit removal of mobilehomes and house trailers from sixth class counties such as Warren County without first obtaining a "removal permit" from the local tax collector (at a cost of $2) certifying that all taxes levied and assessed on the mobilehome or house trailer to be moved have been paid.

Two other House-approved

Bills now before the Senate apply to Warren County's 22 second class townships. One would reduce from 12 to 10 cents the rate of reimbursement per circular mile township officials would be permitted to receive for attending conferences, etc.

The other House-cleared measure would establish a $2 fee for filing a nomination petition for any paid office in second class townships, plus establish a $2 filing fee for the office of township supervisor.

As for Warren County's six boroughs, the House has passed a bill that would eliminate the requirement that minutes of proceedings of borough council be recorded in a bound book. This bill is now in Senate committee.

New Device May Be Helpful In Preventing Plane Hijacking

NEW YORK (AP) — A device that can "see" the metal hidden in your pockets was put into operation at Kennedy Airport Friday, a test to determine if it might be useful in preventing the hijacking of airliners.

It consists of two aluminum rods which detect metal magnetically and signal a record of the amount to a recording device. The detector was installed at the Eastern Airlines gate.

About 1,000 passengers bound for Miami and Puerto Rico were expected to pass through the gate during the day and let the device get a look at their hidden keychains, watchbands, cigarette lighters and coins.

If a passenger happens to go through the gate with a fully loaded pistol hidden in his hip pocket, the device will "see" it but won't tell anyone.

The armed passengers would proceed onto the plane and take off for Miami or Puerto Rico—or Cuba.

The Federal Aviation Administration is using the device only to get statistical data on the amount of metal the average plane passenger—who doesn't want to go to Cuba—carries on his person.

An FAA spokesman said: "If a potential hijacker passed by it and got on a plane, we would not be able to do anything about it."

The original force of Indian fighters numbered 106,000. Today there are only two surviving veterans of those wars.

ELECTION OFFICIALS GET BRIEFING

Election officials from the various county voting districts gathered in the large court room at the Warren County Court House Friday night to brush up on current regulations governing voting procedures. Dr. David K. Rice, chairman of the Warren County Board of Commissioners, conducted the briefing session.

Special emphasis was placed on the new regulations covering absentee ballots. Board personnel received the briefing because the statewide Pennsylvania primary will be held Tuesday. (Photo by Mahan)

Only May and June remain in the fiscal year in which the goal of 1,292 pints of blood can be met. In these two visits, the bloodmobile must collect 270 pints to meet the necessary quota.

Red Cross officials said they are hopeful at least 135 pints of blood will be collected next Wednesday.

ROBERT L. WOLFE FOR JUDGE

THE JUDGE FOR ALL THE PEOPLE • VOTE TOMORROW!

WHY YOU'LL WANT TO CAST YOUR VOTE FOR

Robert L. Wolfe for JUDGE of Warren and Forest Counties

- Learned in the Law
- Experienced Trial Attorney
- Active in Community Affairs
- Outstanding Judicial Qualifications

PRIMARY ELECTION MAY 20, 1969

THIS BROCHURE IS A MODEST CONCISE STATEMENT OF THE FACTS. IT WAS DESIGNED TO INFORM YOU OF BOB WOLFE'S BACKGROUND, HIS ROLE IN OUR COMMUNITY AND THE LEGAL PROFESSION AND OF HIS QUALIFICATIONS FOR JUDGE TO SERVE THE PEOPLE OF WARREN COUNTY. READ YOURS AND CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING POINTS:

RESPECT FOR THE PEOPLE

BOB WOLFE DID NOT SEEK POLITICAL APPOINTMENT TO THE OFFICE OF JUDGE. HE WAS OPENLY OPPOSED TO SUCH APPOINTMENT. HE ASKED THAT THE DECISION BE MADE BY THE PEOPLE IN AN OPEN PRIMARY AND HAS WORKED HARD TO GIVE THEM THIS CHOICE.

OPEN TO THE PEOPLE

BOB WOLFE HAS MADE HIMSELF AVAILABLE TO THE PEOPLE OF OUR COMMUNITIES. HE HAS TRAVELED EXTENSIVELY TO MEET THE VOTERS AND HEAR THEIR VIEWS. HE HAS ATTENDED MANY PUBLIC MEETINGS AND ACCEPTED EVERY INVITATION TO MEET THE VOTERS IN THEIR OWN HOMES.

YOUTH

BOB WOLFE WILL BE ABLE TO PROVIDE LONGER AND MORE EFFECTIVE SERVICE TO THE COURTS OF OUR COUNTIES. HE WILL BE ABLE TO SERVE TWO FULL TERMS ON THE BENCH WELL BEFORE REACHING THE MANDATORY RETIREMENT AGE OF 70. HE WILL NOT HAVE TO RETIRE IN HIS SECOND TERM. BOB WOLFE HAS THE TIME AND ENERGY TO MEET THE RUGGED DEMANDS OF A VIGOROUS JURIST WHO WILL CONTINUE TO BE AN ACTIVE PARTICIPANT IN COMMUNITY AFFAIRS.

PROFESSIONAL SUPPORT

ROBERT L. WOLFE IS SUPPORTED FOR JUDGE BY 14 OF 18 PRACTICING ATTORNEYS IN WARREN ACCORDING TO A SURVEY TAKEN NEAR THE CLOSE OF THE CAMPAIGN. ONLY ONE STATED A PREFERENCE FOR AN OPPONENT.

VARIED LEGAL BACKGROUND

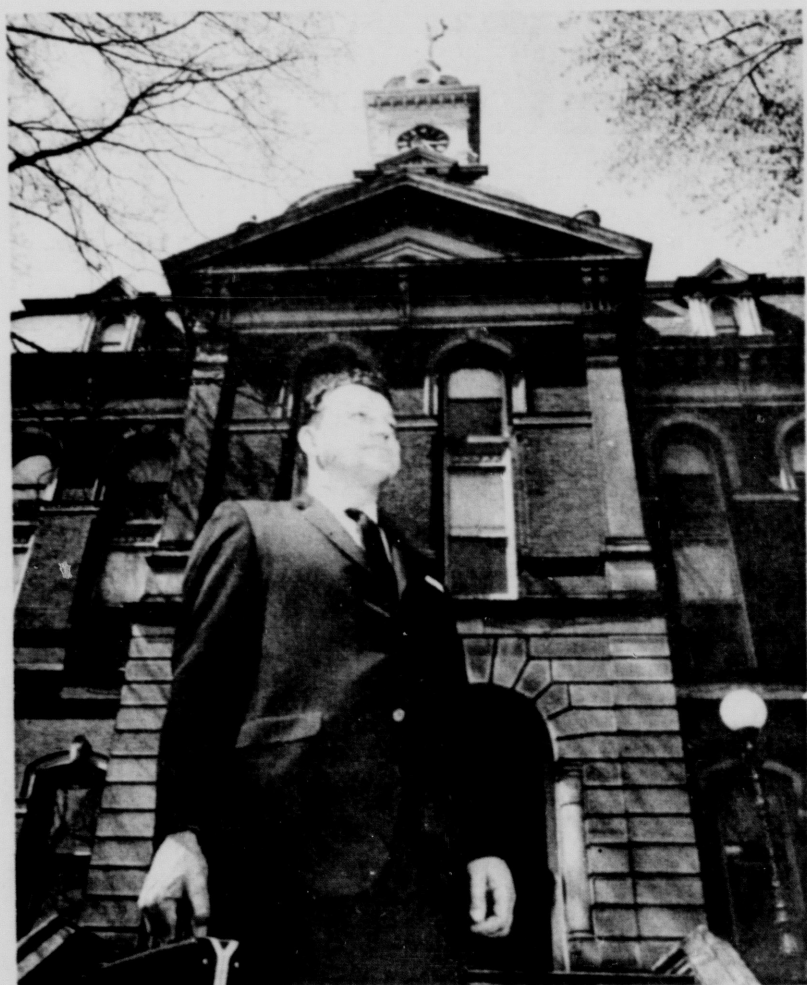

BOB WOLFE HAS LONG AND THOROUGH EXPERIENCE IN ALL ASPECTS OF THE LAW. THOUGH CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS OCCUPY A RELATIVELY SMALL PERCENTAGE OF A JUDGE'S CALENDAR, BOB WOLFE KNOWS OF THE IMPORTANCE OF THIS ISSUE TO THE VOTERS. HE BELIEVES FIRMLY THAT THE CRIMINAL OFFENDER, FOUND GUILTY BY DUE PROCESS OF LAW, MUST BE PUNISHED ACCORDING TO THE SEVERITY OF THE CRIME AND RECORD OF PREVIOUS OFFENSES.

NO COMMITMENTS; OTHER THAN TO THE LAW

BOB WOLFE WOULD BE A JUDGE FOR ALL THE PEOPLE WITH NO STRINGS ATTACHED TO ANY PRIVATE, PUBLIC OR POLITICAL GROUPS OR INDIVIDUALS.

COMMUNITY SUPPORT

BOB WOLFE HAS BEEN PUBLICLY ENDORSED AND SUPPORTED BY A BROAD SEGMENT OF OUR COMMUNITIES. THEY INCLUDE REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS, MEMBERS OF LABOR AND MANAGEMENT, THE YOUNG AND ELDERLY, PEOPLE FROM ALL INCOMES AND OCCUPATIONS — BY THE MANY PEOPLE WHO BELIEVE IN FAIR AND IMPARTIAL JUSTICE.
